WAR FOR OIL

IRAQ ARMY SHELLS KEY BRITISH AIRBASE

War for oil—a new phase in Britain's life-or-death fight for her empire—broke out today in a violent struggle for possession of Iraq's rich petroleum fields. The London radio said Iraq artillery began shelling the British airdrome today at Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Baghdad, soon after the Berlin radio broadcast hints that a flaming "Holy War" in the Near East was brewing.

The broadcast said British forces at the post were taking "counter actions," and it declared it was known that Iraq's pro-Nazi Premier, who seized power in early April, had appealed to Germany for armed help to combat the British. (Details on Page 2).

ARMY SHELLS BRITISH

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—Hostilities between the British and the pro-German government of Rashid Ali Al Gailani of Iraq broke out in that oil-rich Middle East kingdom today with Iraqi troops opening artillery fire on British forces, a British broadcast heard in New York said today.

The report, heard both by NBC and CBS, said the Iraqis began shelling Habbaniyah airport, 60 miles west of Baghdad, at dawn and that the British were fighting back.

British women and children were said to have been taken to the airport for protection before the action began.

The outbreak occurred on the sixth birthday of Iraq's boy king, Feisal II.

BRITISH ADMIT SITUATION IN IRAQ TENSE

By MERRILL MUELLER

LONDON, May 2 (INS)—Pro-Nazi Iraq troops massed around the Habbaniyah airbase west of Baghdad today spurred a British demand for immediate withdrawal.

It was not known whether the hostile attitude of the Iraq forces had precipitated fighting.

The situation, however, was tense in the extreme. Official circles in London indicated they would not be surprised to learn that clashes had occurred.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Istanbul said the United States Consul in Baghdad cabled instructions to suspend for the time being departure of Americans from Turkey to Baghdad.

British troops assigned to the Royal Air Force base at Habbaniyah "pressed" the Iraq forces to withdraw.

Acting under orders of Premier Seyid Rashid Ali Al Gailani, extreme nationalist Moslem who threw out the pro-British Iraq regime in a coup d'etat a few weeks ago, Iraqi military authorities massed what was termed a "large army" at Habbaniyah.

This step was taken after a second formidable contingent of British troops was landed in Iraq to protect the Mosul oil fields and guard against a possible German thrust at Suez by way of the Near East.

An official statement in London said:

"Iraq authorities have massed a large army at Habbaniyah. British authorities pressed for withdrawal of these forces. So far, this has not been done. The situation in Iraq is tense."

The second British unit was landed in Iraq over the protest of the Iraq government. The first arrived less than a week ago.

Habbaniyah is situated on the Euphrates river, 65 miles west of Baghdad. Mechanized Iraqi forces are reported to have been concentrated around the RAF base.

Sir Kinahan Cornwallis, British minister to Iraq, has massed all British non-combatants in the legation as a precautionary measure. The Italian minister is still in Baghdad.

There were no reports of disturbances in Baghdad itself, but British authorities made no effort to disguise gravity of the situation at Habbaniyah, where there is both a seaplane and airplane base. The Iraqi commander also is reported to have requested that the RAF base halt operations.

As a precautionary measure British women and children in Baghdad have been given refuge in the British embassy.

London Withholds Iraq News From British Public

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Upon inquiry in London today about the Iraq situation, the British Broadcasting Co. stated that news of today's clash was broadcast only on its "Empire service." The story has not been broadcast or otherwise announced in London.

The Berlin radio previously had reported Iraq troop movements and the calling up of reserves, and said "demonstrations of loyalty by youth organizations in Iraq have taken place outside the residence of the premier."

"The one important center in the country not yet occupied by the Iraq army is the airport," the German radio said, "and the British units which were landed have been surrounded by the Iraq troops."

British forces at the post are taking "counter actions," the broadcast said.

APPEALED TO NAZIS

The radio said that "it is now known" that after Rashid Ali "violently and illegally" seized power in Iraq early in April he appealed to Germany for armed help to oppose the British.

"It is learned in London that a tense situation has arisen in Iraq at dawn today," the British broadcaster said. He then went on to say the Iraqis were using their artillery.

It said the Premier previously had threatened to oppose the landing of British troops with force.

MOVE ON BRITISH BASES

German radio broadcasts said that Iraq troops were being called up and concentrated around British air bases, and that special units already had control of the Mosul oil fields.

Earlier today, International News Service reported from Budapest that the Iraq government had delivered an "ultimatum" to British authorities to withdraw all British forces from Iraq within two weeks. Otherwise, it was claimed, the Iraqi army will attack British garrisons.

German quarters in Budapest said the Baghdad government cannot.

NEAR EAST STRATEGY—With British forces landing at (1) Basra, the war for oil breaks out in the Near East and pro-Nazi Iraqis of (2) Iraq shell the British airbase at Habbaniyah... the shadow of German events to come darken (3) Asiatic Turkey. There, the Nazi drive expected to divide, one thrust going toward Iraq, the other to Suez. MOVE GAINS IN SENATE TO CURB F.D. ON WAR AID

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—An unexpectedly strong move developed in the Senate today for curbing the proposed authority of the President to turn over seized Axis shipping to Great Britain.

Projected as an integral part of legislation which would permit the President to requisition and pay for about 80 foreign flag vessels lying idle in United States ports, this provision was said to have aroused a storm of protest within the Senate Commerce Committee.

Some committee members asserted that the transfer of one belligerent's ships to another belligerent could only be regarded as "an act of war."

Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission disagreed with this view, although Senators Clark (D.) of Montana, Johnson

(R.) of California and others took the stand that such a transfer would be a warlike gesture.

RESTRICTIONS SEEN

Despite reported Administration pressure to keep the provision in the bill, Chairman Bailey (D.) of North Carolina said he would not be surprised if a majority voted to restrict to American use the German and Italian ships recently taken into "protective custody" by the Coast Guard. Some other committee members disagreed, however.

British Hold On At Tobruk

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—The British garrison at Tobruk, Libya, 80 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, is still holding out against Axis siege, authoritative quarters reported today. The battle continues, they said.

It was known only that the original attack was made at night, some Axis tanks penetrating the outer perimeter of forts.

While heavier than those attacks which preceded it, it was expected in London, however, that the thrust would be turned back, particularly since the British navy is taking a hand.

At Sahum, just inside the Egyptian border, no further Axis advance has been reported. British patrols, continuing to circulate, were said to have captured one German gun yesterday.

In Ethiopia, British said, imperial troops are eight miles north of Amba Alagi, 135 miles north of Dessye, and other forces are moving on from Dessye in two directions toward Assab on the Red Sea and Gondar north of Lake Tana.

Churchill Shakes Up Cabinet

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill answered critics of his administration today by shaking up his cabinet and naming dynamic Lord Beaverbrook to the newly-created post of Minister of State, with the apparent intention of making him virtual dictator of Britain's wartime industries.

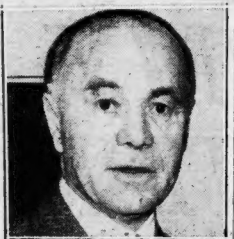

In line with this sweeping move, Churchill merged the ministries of shipping and transport and entrusted the important new portfolio of wartime communications to a virtual unknown—37-year-old Frederick Thomas Leathers, who simultaneously was made a baron.

J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, former minister of transport, was named to succeed Beaverbrook as minister of aircraft production. Ronald H. Cross, relieved of the post of minister of shipping, was appointed high commissioner to Australia.

COMMENDED BY PRESS

These changes, generally commended by the press—which has been insisting that "new men obviously have become necessary for more efficient conduct of the war"—came as Churchill prepared to face Parliament next week in a debate on British reverses in Greece and North Africa.

Indications of a crisis and "mood tantamount to agony" were seen by German officials today in the new British cabinet shake-up, International News

LORD BEAVERBROOK
Minister of State

Service reported from Berlin. "The reorganization shows extent of the crisis in British politics and war economies," a spokesman said. "Otherwise, Britain would not have shuffled two vital ministries."

Beaverbrook, who has been credited generally with speeding up airplane manufacture to meet the German challenge in the air, is expected to have undivided control of the production of guns, tanks and other equipment in his new post.

Concentration of his drive and energy on this problem would relieve Churchill of many of his cares and permit him to devote his full time to the military and diplomatic aspects of the war, the British pointed out.

Political observers said Beaverbrook's new post would make him, in effect, a sort of deputy prime minister.

It appeared the change would not affect the composition of the existing inner war cabinet, of which Beaverbrook has been a member.

Two other minor government changes were made. Col. J. J. Llewellyn and Frederick Montague trading their respective posts as parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport and parliamentary secretary to the ministry of aircraft production.

Mercy Killer of Wife Suicide by Dynamite

PITTSFIELD, May 2—A macabre mercy killing and suicide, in which a 39-year-old farmhand strangled his mentally ailing wife and then killed himself by chewing on a dynamite cap, was revealed here today with discovery of the couple's bodies, side by side, in bed.

STUNT OF 'HUMAN FLY' SAVES GIRL IN BLAZE

Rescued in movie-like fashion as she clung desperately to a second story window sill during a $25,000 fire at the co-educational Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, Miss Isabelle Gardner, a student, was recovering today from smoke inhalation.

Miss Gardner, 21-year-old Binghamton, N. Y., girl, was one of 16 students assembled for choir practice when the fire broke out in the Canterbury Building at the campus on East Elm ave.

All but Miss Gardner had fled over fire escapes.

Norman Collins of Windsor, Ontario, saw the girl precariously clinging to the window sill of the building, and dashed up to the top floor and clambered out on the roof.

He made his way along the gutter until he came opposite the girl, then lowered himself to the window. Miss Gardner was tiring and about to let go her hold. Collins seized her hands and held her. He clung to her until the firemen arrived. Ladderman John Collins raised a ladder to the second floor and carried the girl down. Collins, the student, came down the same ladder.

The girl, who is a sophomore, suffered from smoke inhalation, but was soon revived.

The building was ruined. It contained a laboratory for making plastic casts of biological subjects, and social rooms. It was formerly known as the Quincy mansion, an exclusive girls school. Twelve pianos and an organ were destroyed with it.

The fire started in the basement.

Police Chief John L. Sullivan said the farmhand, Vern Silliman, left a note in which he said his wife, Helen, 38, had begged him to kill her because she was to be committed to the State Hospital at Northampton today.

Discovery of the couple's bodies was made this morning by their 12-year-old son, Wendell, who had slept undisturbed in an adjoining room.

Police said Silliman's note told how he had choked to death his unresisting wife by pulling an electric light cord around her neck, and had then tried unsuccessfully to stab himself first with an ice pick and then a kitchen knife.

He then apparently got back into bed beside his wife's body and bit into the dynamite cap which exploded in his mouth. His head and face were shattered.

They quoted the son, Wendell, as saying he found the dynamite cap more than two years ago and had kept it in a bureau drawer.

The Silliman's two other children, Harold, 5, and Doris, 7, were staying with neighbors.

F. D. Doesn't Know What Son Jim Is Doing in China

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters today he did not have the faintest idea of what his eldest son, Capt. James Roosevelt, was doing in China.

Capt. Roosevelt, now on active duty with the Marine Corps, arrived in China early this week. The President told reporters they would have to ask the Marine Corps the reason for the assignment. The Marines have refused to say.

Island Murder Case Reopening Ordered

Atty.-Gen. Robert T. Bushnell disclosed today that he had ordered Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley to investigate further the unsolved slaying on the island of Martha's Vineyard last summer of Mrs. Clara Smith, 73, of Dorchester.

Mrs. Smith was bludgeoned to death at her room at Oak Bluffs. R. Huntington Rice, 34-year-old education teacher, subsequently was indicted on a charge of murder in the case and was acquitted.

MENJOU HAS LODGE IN FASHION PLATE 10

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 (AP)—The movies get barely a tumble from Adolphe Menjou in his current list of best-dressed men. The East, says this fashion plate, is far more productive of well-turned out males.

Menjou has been making such lists at intervals for years. Most other ratings include him but he modestly does not name himself though he proclaims without hesitancy he is exceptionally well-dressed.

Alphabetically here is his current selection: Lucius Beebe, New York newspaperman; Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle; Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., actor; F. Good-by-Lowe, New York sportswoman; Sam Goldwyn, movie producer; H. B. Hay, Jr., New York broker; Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts; Actor Robert Montgomery; William Rhineland Stewart; the Duke of Windsor.

HAS 12 SUITS

Menjou has some definite ideas on dress, as might be expected after spending 30 years establishing his reputation. He has, incidentally, 12 suit changes in his current film, "Father Takes a Wife," and thinks that's about right for the man to whom clothes are important.

"But you can have a wardrobe 10 times that large and still not be well dressed," he says. "Each suit must hang perfectly, and I've taken some of mine back to the tailor eight or ten times until I'm satisfied."

PRINCIPAL FEEVE

His principal peeve is against wearing belts.

"A suit never was made," he'll shout, "to wear with a belt. They're all fitted for suspenders. The man who doesn't wear suspenders just can't be properly dressed."

Other "no's": Colored skirts, anything but gray slacks, maroon ties with formals, socks without garters, tan shoes with dark suits.

They're "horrible."

Orson Welles' Aid for Bridges Rouses American Legion Wrath

The full weight of the American Legion is expected to be turned against Orson Welles, playwright and conductor of radio programs, during today's conference of national American Legion officials meeting in Indianapolis, it was learned today.

A resolution condemning Welles and others for their support of Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, Communist affiliations, has been framed by department commanders during a conference with the national executive committee.

Delegates to the conference have talked of little else during the past two days and support of the resolution has been considered so widespread that the only issue still unsettled is how strongly the resolution will be worded.

Welles has been singled out as principal target of the Legion's ire for his support of Bridges and for his Sunday night radio programs which have aroused Legion groups throughout the nation as well as other patriotic organizations.

It was also learned that the Legion officials have already asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to check on the activities of Welles and other leaders in the "citizens committee for Harry Bridges."

How much of the individual wrath of Legion officials against Welles for his radio program and the extent of the sentiment which led to the reported request for investigation of him by G-men will appear in the resolution as presented at today's session caused widespread speculation.

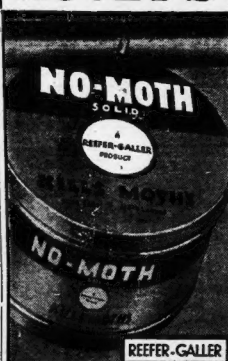

Several New Englanders described as linked with Welles in his agitation for Bridges are expected to share the Legion's condemnation.

Foremost among these is Prof. Otto Matthiessen of Harvard, who has been termed a leader in the "Bridges committee." Others named as members of the committee are Prof. Dirk J. Struik and C. Fayette Taylor of M. I. T., Prof. William J. Crozier of Harvard, Miss Florence Lascomb of Brookline, Prof. Max Lerner of Williams College and the Rev. F. Hastings Smyth of Cambridge.

PATRIOTIC WOMEN DEMAND ORSON WELLES BOYCOTT

LOS ANGELES, May 2—Patriotic American women were called on today to avoid all pictures and radio programs of "such radical actors as Orson Welles."

The call was made at a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution state national defense committee by Mrs. Elizabeth Pfahl, the committee's past vice-chairman.

"All patriotic women should turn off any radio program of Orson Welles and refuse to see any of his pictures, and similar action should be taken in regard to all other actors who are trying to free Harry Bridges," Mrs. Pfahl declared, "and they should let the radio stations and the motion picture studios know what they are doing."

"If women would wake up to the effect of public opinion and would do something about it, some of these un-American activities could be stopped."

2 Soldiers, 2 Others Hurt in Cape Crash

WAREHAM, May 2—A week to the day after a crash here that took the lives of four soldiers returning to Camp Edwards, an accident on the same road almost at the same spot today caused injuries to two soldiers and two civilians.

Hurt today as the result of a head-on collision between two cars on Route 23 were Pvt. Carl Cabianus, 24, of Worcester st., Nrtton, and Pvt. Sidney Buber, 24, of Amherst st., Rowley, both members of M Company of the 101st Infantry.

Returning after a night's leave, their machine was in collision with a car in which William C. Lyons, 27, of Richview st., and Warren J. Queeney, 24, of Rockne ave., both of Dorchester, were on their way to Boston.

The four men, all seriously injured, were taken to Tobey Hospital here. Doctors said all would recover, barring complications. State police began an investigation.

Also at Tobey Hospital, still on the danger list and in critical condition, was Pvt. John Delaney, 24, of Lombard st., Newton, only survivor of the crash last Friday that took the lives of four of his friends. Delaney still does not know what happened or that his friends were killed.

Goodwin Aide Loses License

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin today revealed he has suspended the driving license of Thomas S. L. Kletchka, head of the Fitchburg branch of the registry, for illegal parking.

Goodwin said the suspension was for an indefinite period and became effective yesterday after he had received a complaint that Kletchka parked on a cross-walk in Leominster April 25.

Chief of Police George H. Smith of Leominster reported to the registrar that after Kletchka's car was tagged he tore up the slip and threw it away.

"The same procedure was used in this case as in any other," Goodwin said.

Officers of Capt. James T. Sheehan's traffic squad announced today that between Jan. 1 and April 30, this year, 62,384 summonses had been handed out to parking law violators in Boston, and that over $8000 in fines had been paid.

Some downtown stores had complained, officers declared, but the general reaction to the campaign, they said, was favorable.

At the same time, it was announced a drive against double, triple and quadruple-line parking outside hotels would begin. Police Commissioner Joseph P. Timilty and Traffic Commissioner William Hickey will confer soon about making the parking limit two hours instead of one.

Prince Held In Extortion

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—Prince Ludovic Pignatelli today pleaded innocent to a federal indictment charging attempted extortion, and Federal Judge Edward A. Conger set bail at $3500.

Smothering Takes Heavy Toll of Babies

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2 (AP)—San death overtakes 5000 to 7000 babies in the United States every year, and smothering in bed clothes is the foremost cause, Dr. Jesse L. Carr, University of California pathologist, told the American Academy of Pediatrics today.

It is virtually impossible for a youngster to smother while awake, Dr. Carr said, but in sleep, when vitality is low, it can occur as a gradual process.

When a sleeping person lies with his face in a pillow or other bed clothing he rebreathes much of his own expired air, which contains enough carbon dioxide and nitrous oxide to cause partial asphyxiation. Due to his low energy levels, his respiratory muscles lose some of their ability to contract and thus exert these dangerous gases, which remain to produce asphyxiation.

A baby can smother even while lying on its back, Dr. Carr said. This sometimes happens when it regurgitates and breathes some of the stomach liquids into its lungs.

MAN DIES IN FIRE

NEW LONDON, Ct., May 2 (AP)—George Rosetti, about 72, who was a native of St. Johnsbury, Vt., died of suffocation and burns today in a fire that swept his attic apartment.

WOMEN MAY GO BARE-LEGGED TO SAVE COST OF HOSIERY

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Miss Harriet Elliott, consumer representative in the defense program, told a consumers' goods conference today that there had been a widespread substitution of inferior materials to conceal price increases.

While the question of higher costs was brought before the conference, government experts forecast slightly increased prices in some goods, and one of them suggested bare legs as an economical substitute for women's hosiery.

Because the government is appealing to industry to keep prices down, Miss Elliott said, some manufacturers have cheapened products to sell them at old prices.

"If we allow the quality of our consumers' goods to depreciate to a point where they must be replaced after a comparatively short time in use," she added, "we will have wasted not only materials and purchasing power, but labor and machines."

SPECULATORS HIT

"But the most serious aspect of this problem lies in the fact that the penalties of poor quality will fall heaviest on those whose incomes are small. These penalties will be paid in coins of lowered health and vitality."

William M. D'Miller, chairman of the National Food & Grocery Conference committee, said food distributors were prepared to handle any defense emergencies and said his group "denounced" food speculators.

He said distributors were absorbing some of the higher costs of food, declaring that wholesale food prices rose 10 per cent in the last year while retail prices rose 3 per cent.

An intensive government study appeared to assure housewives no shortages are in sight on any of the ordinary articles of food or clothing.

HIGHER FOOD PRICES

From the government reports made public today, it appeared higher prices were expected, however, for meat, canned vegetables, eggs, dairy products, woolen goods, shoes, knitted underwear and men's work clothing.

Experts of the Agriculture and Commerce Departments and other agencies found not only good supply prospects, but outlined substitutes that can be used.

The defense program was said to have caused serious readjustments in production of some of the staples. The underwear industry, for instance, has had to shift to a large extent from the light sort of underwear that most civilian men wear to the heavy drawers that the army is buying by the millions.

HUBBY RENTED FOR $10,000 A YEAR WANTS HALF

LOS ANGELES, May 2 (AP)—Samuel Brummel, 56-year-old insurance salesman who contends his wife rented him to another woman for a year, demands half the $10,000 Mrs. Brummel said she received.

Seeking a divorce from Mrs. Lillian Patton Brummel, whom he married in San Francisco in 1911, Brummel alleges that although he returned to her at the end of the year, she deserted him without splitting the fee as promised. He is suing for half as community property.

Mrs. Norma Peppin, middle-aged county employee, tearfully acknowledged in court she paid the sum to Mrs. Brummel, but declined to say what it was for. Mrs. Brummel testified it was "to compensate" her for the loss of her husband's affections.

Asked on cross-examination where the money came from, Brummel blandly replied:

"It was from a business deal." "Is it then your contention that Mrs. Lillian Brummel made an agreement whereby she loaned you out for $10,000?"

"Yes."

"And what did you say to that?"

"I said all right."

WIFE DIVORCED IN 1938
Mrs. Brummel obtained a divorce in Tijuana, Mex., July 1, 1938, court records show, and the following Aug. 5 Brummel married Mrs. Peppin in Fresno, Cal. They separated a year and 10 days later and last Aug. 5 Mrs. Peppin obtained an annulment on the ground Brummel already was married at the time of the Fresno ceremony. She contended the Mexican divorce was not valid.

As the basis for his claim for half of the $10,000, Brummel testified:

"I came home one day and Lillian told me that Mrs. Peppin was receiving a large estate—40 to 50 to 60, maybe $80,000."

"My wife said she had it all arranged for the $10,000 and that I shouldn't stay with Mrs. Peppin longer than a year. She said she was just loaning me to her and that just as soon as I got free from Mrs. Peppin half of the money would be mine."

"And what did you say to that?" he was asked.

"I said O. K."

DECISION WITHHELD

Mrs. Brummel's explanation was this:

"One day Mrs. Peppin took me aside and told me, 'I am going to make a confession. I have done a worse act than anyone could do to a dear friend. I am in love with Mr. Brummel. It is just one of those things. But I am going to compensate you with $10,000.'"

During the discussions, Brummel said, he was seeing Mrs. Peppin in his wife's company, and after his marriage to Mrs. Peppin he saw Mrs. Brummel "right along."

"My wife told me 100 times, 'You were only loaned out to her for a year; I expect you back after a year; I am just loaning you out.'"

Harry F. Sewell, superior judge pro tem, took Brummel's suit under advisement.

Exclusive, Right Word For This Shop

WETUMPKA, Ala., May 2 (AP)—A highly "exclusive" beauty shop will begin operation here shortly.

W. E. Persons, state director of corrections and institutions, said two rooms had been set aside for a beauty parlor in the new state prison being built here for women.

Manicuring, shampooing, finger-waving, massaging and hair-straightening, he said, will be offered the approximately 400 inmates, 300 of whom are Negroes.

Quits Court To Aid Kin He Stabbed

A 23-year-old Chelsea youth, after pleading guilty to charges of stabbing his older brother in the abdomen, rushed from Chelsea court today to the Massachusetts General Hospital to offer his blood to save his brother's life.

Joseph Kashanek, married, of Everett ave., Chelsea, was released in $1000 bond after Judge Paul J. McDonald found probable cause to order his appearance before the grand jury.

According to Police Officer Paul Dobbins, Joseph had a drinking argument with his brother, John, 24, sometime last evening and later in the night, as John walked home, four men attacked him on a street corner and stabbed him.

Dobbins testified that Joseph, under questioning, admitted his guilt.

The elder brother, following the stabbing, was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where doctors said he was in critical condition and that his name was on the danger list.

Joseph appeared before Judge McDonald, pleaded guilty, then left. He went directly to the hospital, where he offered his blood for a transfusion needed to save his brother's life.

U. S. to Probe Meat Prices

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP)—The federal government announced today more than 100 witnesses had been subpoenaed for a grand jury investigation to determine whether price-fixing and restraints of trade existed in the livestock markets and meat packing industry in Chicago.

Daniel B. Britt, special assistant to the attorney-general, said the investigation would concentrate on the price of dressed meat and the market practices of packers, order buyers and commission men dealing in lambs, hogs and cattle.

Major companies under investigation, Britt said, are Armour, Wilson and Swift, packers.

Britt said processors and distributors were receiving about 60 cents of the average dollar consumers spend for food, whereas between 1913 and 1920 they received only 40 to 50 cents.

STEWART FINDS MUM'S THE WORD IN ARMY

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 (AP)—A month in the Army has taught James Stewart, voted the best actor in the movies in 1940, "to listen attentively, to obey orders and to keep my mouth shut." It also has given him a sunburned nose, has made him thinner, if anything, and is teaching him to bellow orders in true drill-field style.

Now he's a corporal, the lowest rank of non-commissioned officer but the leader of a squad. He spends his days receiving instruction in drilling—days which begin at 5:30 a. m. and end at 9 p. m.

READY FOR BED

"When you drill, and yell orders all day, going through the manual of arms, by nightfall you're hoarse and ready for bed," he says.

"But I'm feeling swell, getting in good condition, and get along fine with the other draftees. They all treat me very well."

Stewart had his first special assignment yesterday—as spokesman for the enlisted men at a meeting in Los Angeles of the united service organizations for national defense. The klaki-eyed, deeply-tanned Stewart declared:

PRaises SERVICE

"We enlisted men have come to love the service. Every one of us turned his face from his normal pursuits and has his eyes lifted to a new ideal. There is a unity of thought and action that cannot and will not be broken."

Stewart spent the afternoon at M-G-M studio and received a hearty welcome from Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald, Wallace Beery, and other friends.

Today he was back at Moffett Field, marching and issuing hoarse commands.

Old Salt Asks Help to Keep House Afloat

MARBLEHEAD, May 2 (AP)—A nautical problem on land confronted the town fathers today.

Declaring that poor drainage was making it difficult to keep his house "afloat," Capt. Roger H. Martin, who has skippered all kinds of vessels, explained it this way to the selectmen:

"The house is located on a strata of clay which will not permit the water to drain, so I kept the pumps going in the fore and aft compartments in order not to scupper the place, and I was forced to man the bilge, for the fireplace sprang a leak."

"Working the pumps with no watches below is an arduous task, but, shiver my timbers, when that fireplace started leaking I called all hands and started to abandon ship. The first mate is spelling me up at the pumps now."

The captain left, declaring he had to go home and "trim ship," as the house was "down by the bow."

The selectmen turned the problem over to the town engineer.

4 Sets of Quads In Dog's Litter Believed Record

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP)

—Birth of 16 puppies to Matha, a Great Dane, is believed by her owner, George Adams, to be a record for that breed.

Two previous litters of 12 and 15 were born to Matha, the daughter of the 1935 world champion of all breeds, Horsa Dogensport. Great Danes usually have no more than eight pups at a time.

14 Mystery Girl Housework Fugitive

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1941

MABEL BISHOP, 15
Runs Away From Work

Because she was tired of doing housework and taking care of her six younger brothers and sisters, 15-year-old Mabel Bishop ran away from her New London home, the girl told Boston police today.

Her appearance in Boston occasioned something of a mystery at first, because when she applied at the Travelers' Aid office in South Station from a New York train, she said her name was Joan McLaughlin. Then she said Joan McArthur. It was raining and she had no coat—but two sweaters, and two dresses. To the police she told a number of confusing stories.

She came, she said, from 45th st., New York city, and was looking for relatives in Ipswich.

When police began to check her story, she mentioned she had attended the Chapman Technical High School in New London, Ct., and a police teletype to the city, in the course of investigation, revealed that a 15-year-old Mabel Bishop was missing.

The girl finally admitted she was Mabel Bishop.

"I'm the oldest in my family of seven," she said. "I had to do all the housework, and take care of all my brothers and sisters. I just got tired of the whole thing."

Hopkinton Man Hurt In Auto-Truck Crash

Cuts and bruises about the head were suffered today by Lawrence Cornell, of North st., Hopkinton, when a light sedan he was driving was in collision with a creamery truck at the corner of East Springfield st. and Shawmut ave. South End.

Taken to the Boston City Hospital Cornell was discharged after treatment. Marguerite Madden, of Park dr., Back Bay, a passenger in Cornell's car was uninjured. Charles E. Turner, of Andrew st., Lawrence, the truck driver, did not report any injuries.

18 Iraq Holy War Near, Nazis Say U. S. WATCHING BRITISH-IRAQ CLASH OVER RICH OIL FIELDS

called the Anglo-Iraq treaty, permitting passage of British troops through Iraq territory.

OIL FIELDS, SUEZ STAKES

For days Britons have been expecting a German move on Asia Minor, that three-way bridge linking Europe, Africa and Asia.

Iraq's rich oil fields and a road to Suez are the stakes.

Turkey would be in the middle if the Nazis started to move into Iraq by land. Seized Greek islands, however, might offer a by-pass, but at the same time isolating Turkey.

The combination of British, Syrian, Italian and German reports on the situation offered the following picture, not allowing for propaganda deviations from the actual facts:

At least a "somewhat critical situation" developed when Iraq failed to comply with a request that she withdraw forces around Habbaniyah airport. Iraq protested against the manner of British troop movements into Iraq, through Basra at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Rashid Ali called on his people to take up arms for a "sacred" struggle against Britain. He told Iraqis to take up any arms at hand.

Native forces already in arms, started moving on the Iraq bases which British holds by treaty and an armed Iraq guard was posted on the largely British-developed Mosul oil fields.

Mobilization of the Iraq army beyond its regular 25,000 standing strength was ordered.

British troops recently landed at Basra were "encircled." No serious fighting has yet resulted, however.

IRAQ IS MOBILIZED

The German radio said Iraq had mobilized "all classes of special units" and some of the regular army.

The Berlin broadcaster quoted Stefani, official Italian news agency, for the reports, in part, "The Stefani agency reports from the Iraq capital that Iraq troops began the occupation of strategic points throughout the country on Wednesday," the German broadcast said.

"British troops landed at Basra have been encircled by Iraq units. Serious incidents, however, have not occurred yet."

"Regarding the later Stefani report a number of the recently landed British troops have gone over to the Iraq army. They are said to be Indian regiments."

Rashid Ali has issued an appeal to his people to take up arms for a "sacred" struggle against Britain, the German radio also reported.

In a propaganda barrage of reports from the Near East, the broadcast indicated an effort is in full swing to enlist the support of all Arabs in a "Jihad" or Holy War in that part of the Moslem world Iraq is important to Britain because it occupies a key position over the oil reserves of the Near East and with Syria affords the only possible line of British communications with Turkey. It flanks the British in Egypt.

At the same time diplomatic activity was reported in Iran, eastern neighbor of Iraq, by the German radio. This broadcast, heard by CBS, said the Iran prime minister and cabinet attended a May Day reception yesterday at the German legation in Teheran.

HOLY WAR LOOMS

A Jihad is fundamentally a Moslem religious war against infidels or Mohammedan heretics or, loosely, any bitter struggle or crusade for a principle or belief.

Technically, a Holy War may be declared only by the Caliphate. It has been abolished by Turkey, however, so that any head of a Moslem sect with an influential following might proclaim a Holy War and call on Moslems to support it.

One such leader is the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, now living in exile in Baghdad.

The German radio said the Iraq premier told his nation "the hour of struggle seems to be near."

"The Iraq nation will not submit to humiliations inflicted by a foreign power," the premier was quoted as broadcasting.

"We have not sought the struggle, but now an appeal of country goes out to everyone. Everyone should shoulder a rifle or arm himself with a revolver or if he possesses neither, he should take some other weapon. We are waging a sacred struggle."

SYRIA EYES MOVES

The Berlin radio, still quoting advices from Ankara, the Turkish capital, said the Iraq station since early morning had been broadcasting martial verses from the Koran, sacred book of the Moslems.

"Events of the past 24 hours appear to have developed almost an inconceivable martial enthusiasm in the Iraq nation which reveals an unexpected spirit of national determination," said the Berlin broadcast.

The radio quoted other reports from Beirut, Lebanon, and Ankara in which it was said events in Iraq were being followed in political circles with the greatest interest.

Political quarters in Damascus, Syria, were reported as emphasizing that developments in Iraq are of the greatest importance to Syria "since the two countries are inseparable."

ARABS MAY AID

"The Iraq government has received innumerable telegrams of sympathy from all parts of Syria," the German radio continued in its report from Beirut.

"Reports from Palestine state that numerous Arab fighters for freedom are prepared to go immediately to Iraq should the further course of events render it necessary to come to the assistance of Iraq, or should the Iraq government issue an appeal for support of the Arab world."

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP) — American officials kept a watchful eye today on threatening developments in the kingdom of Iraq where a British-Iraq clash might set the Moslem Near East aflame and imperil an area vital to the life of the British Empire including the rich Kirkuk oil fields.

Paul Knabenschue, the United States minister—resident at Baghdad, is keeping the State Department informed on developments, and taking measures for the safety of the small American colony there, and American oil interests in Iraq.

TRNSPORT 1 SOBLEM

While loss of the Iraq fields would cost the British many thousands of barrels of oil a day, petroleum experts here doubt that Germany's seizure of them, or control through a pro-Nazi government in Iraq, would benefit the German army because of the tremendously difficult transportation problem.

E. Degoyler, noted oil engineer, reported to the National Petroleum Ass'n that "it is difficult to see how oil from this region can be made available to the Axis powers, even in event of conquest. If the pipelines from Iraq to the Mediterranean are destroyed and unless the Axis powers can secure some control of the sea."

Informed officials here explained that the threatened clash in Iraq resulted from landings of British troops at Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf—landings objected to by the new Iraq government formed by Rashid Ali Al Gailani.

GREAT OIL AREA

In his report to the National Petroleum Association Degoyler characterized the Iraq region as "one of the greatest potential oil areas of the world."

"It would be improbable," he said, "for the center of gravity of the world's oil production to shift to this area within the next 50 years."

Iraq oil, Degoyler explained, comes from the mammoth Mosul or Kirkuk field in the northern part of a great basin extending along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. The concessions are owned and operated by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. (in which the British government owns a controlling interest), the Dutch Shell, a French company, and a group of American companies.

The Kirkuk field is connected with the Mediterranean by a modern pipeline system, with duplicate lines and pumping installations, extending 156 miles from Kirkuk to Haditha on the Euphrates river. From there one line goes to the British-mandated port of Haifa, Palestine (a total distance of 650 miles), the other to the French-mandated port of Tripoli in Syria, a total distance of 532 miles.

Tripoli, Syria, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, should not be confused with Tripoli, Libya. Axis-held have far to the west, on the north coast of Africa.

The pipeline has a daily capacity of 85,000 barrels. Degoyler reported, and before the war the major portion went to France. Since the collapse of France the Tripoli line has been closed and all production has gone to Britain.

British Complete Greece Evacuation

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 2 (INS)—Evacuation of British and imperial forces from Greece has been completed, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commander in the Middle East and second in command to Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, declared today.

In a cable to Australian officials Sir Thomas said that losses sustained at sea during the evacuation amounted to less than 500 men.

The message added that approximately 43,000 soldiers were evacuated from Greece and that between 3000 and 4000 who arrived at embarkation beaches were left behind.

British Navy Lauded For Doing 'Impossible'

Robert St. John, Associated Press correspondent in Belgrade when the Germans invaded Yugoslavia April 6, reached Egypt after a gruelling 25-day flight through the Balkan rear zone to a bomb-shattered Greek port and thence aboard a ship laden with British troops to Cairo.

He was slightly wounded in the leg by machine-gun fire.

When the Nazi pincer columns closed in on Belgrade, St. John went to the Adriatic port of Kotor and, with three other correspondents, began a hazardous 400-mile voyage to Greece in a small boat powered with an outboard motor.

By ROBERT ST. JOHN

CAIRO, Egypt, May 2 (AP)—The British navy accomplished the "impossible" in rescuing something under 50,000 imperial troops from Greece.

Military and naval experts said it couldn't be done.

But the impossible was done. From what I saw as I came down through Greece and joined the waiting troops on jetties and watched the astonishing mechanics of the embarkation, I know the navy didn't stop to ask the odds against it—it just went ahead and cleaned up the job.

I talked with many soldiers during the zig zag crossing and their morale was amazingly high. They're on their way to fight once more. Australians, Canadians, New Zealanders, and Englishmen all said they were eager to get at it again.

There were hundreds of Greek almen, infantrymen and gunners aboard the ship that crept out of the fog-shrouded harbor the night our vessel left.

The Greeks made a point of the fact that now their people could boast that Greeks were still in the fight. Many of them brought their own weapons with them.

In almost every town where I halted for a few minutes to arrange transportation for the next jump in my scramble to keep ahead of the invading force, some Greek who had lived in America took me aside. One said:

"I tell my people here that I know America, because I have been there."

"I tell them America and Great Britain together will save us from this shame which we must bear for a little while."

"I tell them about how big America is, how big her factories are, and how no power can stop America and Britain together."

"That is why you see them still hopeful."

Two-Thirds of British Lost in Greece, Nazis Say

BERLIN, May 2 (AP)—Germany wrote an official flin to the Greek campaign today, claiming that in this latest Nazi victory the British lost two-thirds of the imperial troops sent to Greece.

By Britain's own figure on the strength of the expeditionary force, two-thirds would be 40,000 men.

The high command, announcing completion of the occupation of Greece's Peloponnesian peninsula asserted "there is no fighting British any longer on the Greek mainland."

It asserted 8200 British prisoners were trapped in southern harbors on the Peloponnesus alone before they could embark.

SENATORS DEMAND CURB ON F. D. POWER

with Bailey's appraisal of the opposition strength.

Chairman George (D.) of Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who introduced the ship requisition legislation, predicted that some compromise would be worked out under which the Axis vessels could be used in American coastal trade.

As the measure was reported by a House committee, it would authorize the President not only to take over the foreign flag vessels in this country, but to negotiate for the purchase of idle vessels in other Western Hemisphere ports.

Under present plans all such vessels would be put into the 2,000,000-ton shipping pool the President has instructed the maritime commission to assemble for transfer to foreign registry. This cargo fleet would carry war supplies to Britain.

The commission announced yesterday that 50 big American tankers would be assigned to carry oil from South American ports to North Atlantic ports, where it will be trans-shipped for British use. The tankers would remain under American registry.

Wherever railroad and water facilities are available, Admiral Land was reported to have told the commerce committee, ships would be taken and the transportation burden placed on the railroads. In addition, Land was said to have disclosed plans to acquire Great Lakes and river craft which might be placed into the coastal trade on necessary routes, to make larger vessels now in use there available for the British.

With the Senate committee delaying action on the ship acquisition bill until the House acts on it next week, it seemed likely that the convoy issue would be raised when the measure finally reaches the Senate floor.

Rayburn Asks Billion Cut in Non-Defense

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP) — Speaker Rayburn said today that he planned to transmit to President Roosevelt "at the first opportunity" requests of some members of Congress that action be taken now on Sec. Morgenthau's suggestion that no-defense expenditures be trimmed by $1,000,000,000.

"These men say that it would make their task much easier if something along that line were done," Rayburn said. "I told the fellows that at the first opportunity available I would discuss this matter with the President."

Rayburn said "there has been talk" that appropriations for relief the National Youth Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Agriculture Department might be reduced.

The American Farm Bureau Federation today urged that Congress, in raising $3,600,000,000 additional revenue, cut present income tax exemptions about in half and adopt a flexible income tax system designed to offset potential inflationary effects of the defense spending program.

Edward A. O'Neil, president of the Federation, presented its views to the House Ways and Means Committee and said the recommendations were based on a study prepared by the economics staff of Iowa State College.

The major features of that study were outlined to the committee yesterday by Dr. Albert G. Hart of the college's faculty, who said they bore the endorsement of more than 170 economists.

A MIDNIGHT DRAMATIZATION OF the news told most dramatically how Lord Halifax was acquiring the common touch, and increasing his American popularity . . . In a little playlet, the British diplomat was impersonated as he is supposed to have behaved recently in real-life . . . Three young things were striving to get his autograph, and the visiting nobleman graciously scratched off his signature for a girl who said her name was Billy Young and that she was Irish.

"WELL, NOW," SAID HIS LUDSHIP, "THERE are two kinds of Irish, shanty Irish and lace-curtain Irish" . . . If His Grace won't resent the advice, this is no way at all to increase his popularity with Americans descended from Irish progenitors . . . There are THREE kinds of so-called Irish, and the vast majority are neither "shanty" nor "lace-curtain."

This was by way of a quickly spread report that the proposed Buckley audit would hurt employees of the railway and their salaries.

THE REPORT IS VIEWED as a rather clumsy political maneuver, and to it Buckley replies: "Employees of the railway need have no fears regarding the possible outcome of the proposed audit, for in entering this (supreme court) petition I am already thoroughly convinced that there can be no possible reduction either in salaries or in the number of employees of the company without seriously impairing the efficiency of this service to the public."

THE ONE-TIME "MAN NO-BODY KNOWS" but who now is too well-known for the comfort of various varied parties, says further: "The quality of the (Elevated) service and the salaries paid to the employees of the company have not at any time during this controversy been criticized. The program of the proposed audit will be arranged to determine whether or not a deficit actually exists" . . . It hits this department that this active lad seems to be impressed with the fact that his supporters meant him really to function in office.

U. S. Aid Asked By Australia

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia appealed to the United States today for war help "on a great scale" and said "we cannot approach this war in an amateur manner."

Menzies told a press conference that "American help, if it is to shorten the war effectively, must be on a great scale."

Menzies told a press conference that "American help, if it is to shorten the war effectively, must be on a great scale."

"We are looking hopefully and confidently to the material help we need from the United States," he added, "not help to be given a weak people, but help to be given to a strong people who need extra strength if the war is not to last too long."

"Everyone must become professional and treat the war as a whole-time business," Menzies declared.

He had no comment on the battle of Greece.

Menzies said definitely he was going to the United States and indicated he would make some speeches, stressing that "in the mechanical sense we must all work like beavers in all parts of the English-speaking world."

Tokyo Banner Demands Stronger Policy Against U. S.

TOKYO, May 2 (AP)—An eight-foot banner demanding a "stronger policy dealing with the United States" appeared today at a busy downtown street corner.

The banner was hung from a building by the Kokusai Taishuto, described by the Japanese news agency, Domei, as a "minor political organization."

Farley Heads Hub Coca-Cola Concern

James A. Farley, former postmaster general, has been elected president of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., of Boston, officials announced. He was elected chairman of the Coca-Cola Export Corp. last September, and still retains that position.

Oscar G. Davis, bottling company manager, was chosen vice-president and director. The Boston company, now in Washington st., Brighton, is building a new plant in Soldiers Field rd., Brighton.

VON PAPEN BACK IN TURKEY

BERLIN, May 2 (AP)—It was announced in political circles today that Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, had returned to that nation, but there was no speculation as to whether he bore new instructions.

Royal Academy Show in London Features War Art

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—What bombs, evacuation and war service have left of London "society" viewed privately today the Royal Academy's 175th annual exhibition and found it largely made up of war paintings.

Many of the exhibitors, both men and women, now are doing war duty and striking portrayals of the air battles and bombings they witnessed are among the outstanding pieces in the exhibition.

Only 1000 pictures, an unusually small number, are being shown this year.

The evacuation of Dunkirk last June and the blitz on London last September inspired many big works packed with tragic detail.

ETHEL MAYNE DEAD

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Ethel Colburn Mayne, writer, died Wednesday at a nursing home in Torquay, it was reported today. She wrote numerous fiction stories and translated a number of foreign works.

Jobless Rolls Being Slashed

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—The parade of new workers into private industry, under impetus of national defense, was shown by government figures today to have attained a pace which, if maintained, would put over 5,000,000 unemployed to work within a year.

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, reported that state employment services during March placed 376,000 men and women, 55 per cent more than in the same month last year. In addition, 53,000 placements were made in March by the employment offices bringing together worker and employer but not carrying through the actual employment process.

Social security board figures made no estimate of the number of persons finding work without aid of the state employment services, but the American Federation of Labor estimated 575,000 more workers were employed on March 31 than on Feb. 28.

If the new job pace holds for 12 months, a social security spokesman pointed out, the rolls of registered, able unemployed virtually would be cleared.

10,000 Devens Men Meet Invasion Test

More than 10,000 peacetime soldiers at Ft. Devens today got up with the bugle call to go out and tackle problem mock warfare dealing with possible invasion of New England.

Like horses chafing at the bit, the young soldiers, in trucks and on foot, enthusiastically left camp for the maneuvers.

With co-operation of State Police, Army men planned to keep all motorists away from the scene of the mock skirmish. Roughly, the Nashua river, from where it crosses Route 117 in Lancaster North to its crossing of Route 110 in Groton, was the boundary between the opposing "black" and "blue" armies.

FLANKS JOIN GAME
Representing the closest approach to war games which the men at Ft. Devens have had in months, the maneuvers called for one army to outmaneuver the other for position on the banks of the Nashua river.

The Devens soldiers were joined in the main battle by planes of the 113th Observation Squadron, stationed at Fitchburg, which was attempting to spot troop concentrations from the air, communicating with the ground forces by two-way radio.

Meanwhile, the newly organized State Guard was preparing for a "problem" disaster next Monday, when several thousand officers and men will be assembled at 49 armories in the state to meet the simulated emergency.

NEW FIELD RATION

The problem will be broadcast over the Colonial Network by Gov. Stimson. Adjt.-Gen. Erickson and Maj.-Gen. Fish, head of the State Guard, will test the reaction of infantry, engineers' supply medical corps and military police to actual conditions attendant upon a war or peacetime disaster.

At Camp Edwards, the long-discussed field ration, designed to provide better balanced meals at less cost, went into effect everywhere, except in the base hospital. Costing only about 40 cents a day per man as compared to 44 cents for the cantonment ration, the new ration eliminates so-called "bland" foods such as puddings and soft desserts and provides more starches, sugar, proteins and carbohydrates.

WEATHER

Official U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast

LOCAL—Clearing this afternoon; fair tonight, slightly cooler than last night with light frosts in exposed places; Saturday fair and warmer in the afternoon; Sunday fair and warmer; increasing north and northeast winds becoming moderate to fresh Saturday; lowest temperature tonight near 38 degrees.

MAINE, VERMONT AND NEW HAMPSHIRE—Fair and cooler tonight, with light to heavy frosts; Saturday fair, warmer in the afternoon; Sunday fair and warmer.

CONNECTICUT AND RHODE ISLAND—Fair and cooler tonight, light frosts in exposed places; Saturday fair, warmer in afternoon; Sunday fair and warmer.

GENERAL CONDITIONS
A new low-pressure disturbance has moved across southern New England and is causing cloudy weather with showers over eastern and southern New England early today. Snow is falling at Bangor, Greenville and Waterville. Dry air now over the lake region and the northern portions of New York, Vermont and New Hampshire is moving southward behind this low and will move across southern New England this afternoon resulting in clearing. The dry air over New England will be well established by Saturday, producing fair weather with rising temperature.

FIVE-DAY FORECAST
Forecast from 7:30 p. m., Friday, May 2, to 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, May 7.
Temperatures over New England during the next five days will average from two to seven degrees above normal. Normal for the period are: Boston and Burlington, 53; New Haven, 51; Concord, 51; Portland, 50; New Bedford, 49; and Eastport, 45.
The temperature will rise slowly Saturday, becoming generally higher than normal Sunday with little change thereafter, except for sea breeze cooling along the coast. Rainfall will be light, less than one-quarter of an inch in southern New England, and moderate, one-quarter to two-thirds of an inch in northern New England. Scattered showers and light to moderate showers will occur especially in the northern sections during the middle and latter part of the period.

'Pot o' Gold' Fails Its Own Stars

By PEGGY DOYLE

Capt. Jimmy Roosevelt of the Marines is reported to be quitting the moving picture field. After viewing his initial production, "Pot O' Gold," on the Metropolitan screen yesterday, we are moved to say what could be fairer than that?

"Pot O' Gold," which woefully wastes the talents of James Stewart, Paulette Goddard and Horace Heidt and his band to show you how the "Pot O' Gold" radio hour was born, has curiously value solely. Friends and fellow-citizens of the President's eldest son doubtless will want to judge for themselves what sort of picture he has turned out. Rose-colored glasses, you are hereby advised, will mellow the verdict.

From start to finish it is an inept piece of business, unfunny and schmalzy. There is even a sequence showing Paulette Goddard dreaming herself into a Juliet fantasy.

Another that even a child couldn't swallow in these up-and-coming days has Jimmy Stewart and Miss Goddard committing an act of stealage with a carnival wheel in a distant amusement park the while the Heidt "Pot O' Gold" radio hour is holding its breath pending its arrival. It's vital in the selection of the lucky telephone number and so they wait until the penultimate minute to locate one.

Private Stewart, who copped the 1940 Academy Award, nor does the glamorous Miss Goddard deserve any merit-badges for her part in this unfortunate production. Charley Winninger, as a fussy-budget radio advertiser allergic to music, is bound to get into your hair and only Horace Heidt comes out handsomely in the wash.

Or does he? Certainly the movie version of "Pot O' Gold" is no come on for the popular radio original.

On the same program, "The Penalty" teams Edward Arnold and Lionel Barrymore in the film based on Martin Berkeley's Broadway melodrama.

Justice Roberts Marks 66th Birthday

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Justice Owen J. Roberts, the Supreme Court's leading dissenter, reached his 66th birthday anniversary today.

The jurist, who gained national prominence as government prosecutor in the celebrated Teapot Dome Oil cases, was appointed to the court by President Hoover in 1930.

Old Howard Offers Gay Midnight Show

The "Fads and Fancies" burlesque revue is to be the main attraction at the old Howard's midnight show at the Old Howard. The cast is headed by Mike Sacks, Fred Binder, Jack Roseng, James X. Francis, Pat Paige, Lois DeFes, Zonia Duval, Harry "Shuffler" Levan, Dolores Gowen, the Five Elgins, Dot Darling, Leibel Brown and Cleo and June Morse.

'Untamed' Tops Gayety's Films

"Untamed," the adventurous screen yarn of L. romantic Northwest, co-starring Ray Milland and patrician Patricia Morison, dominates the Gayety screen today through tomorrow night.

On the same bill, the Gayety of Yers "Charter Pirate," with Lloyd Nolan and Lynn Bari.

Opens Tonight

"Goldene Dem Bekers," the Yiddish-American musical comedy that endured a full season in New York, opens a five-performance engagement at the Boston Opera House tonight.

'Fantasia' Extends Stay

Announcement that the "Fantasia" engagement at the Majestic was ending with tomorrow night's showing has stimulated business to such an extent that Walt Disney's Imaginative and beautiful film hit is being held over an additional week.

The extension of the engagement through Saturday, May 10, will give the procrastinators who have been "going to see 'Fantasia' tomorrow" opportunity to catch it before it departs. Nor does one viewing of "Fantasia" satisfy most of the customers, who return in droves to see it a second, third, fourth and even fifth time.

'Tobacco Road' Film Hit Now at Uptown

"Tobacco Road," John Ford's screen version of the Broadway endurance stage-play of them all, opens today on the Uptown screen. Charley Grapewin, as the Jester Lester, is amply supported by Gene Tierney, Marjorie Rambeau, Ward Bond, William Tracy and Elizabeth Patterson. On the same bill is Harold Lloyd's first production effort, "A Girl, a Guy and a Goat," with Lucille Ball, Edmond O'Brien and George Murphy.

Hal LeRoy Heads Smart Revue at RKO Boston

Tops in taps, and a whiz in every dance department, Hal LeRoy, that personable young man with a nice smile and a load of pep, takes the star spot in the new "Gay Nineties" revue at the Keith Boston.

The big revue has more dancing by Moore and Revel, the "Royal Jesters" in the terpsichorean field. There's another act that's a favorite with four-day fans, who get a big laugh when they turn their exquisite waltz into the dizziest slapstick a couple of expert comedy tumblers could take.

Sarah Ann McCabe takes over the vocal honors. Miss McCabe, a real stylist in songs, scored with a cleverly arranged Friml melody, and with the rhythmic "Chi-Chi Costenango."

The Three Chords are a trio of boys who could make you think almost any band you ever heard was back of the footlights, and they can "make like" any instrument in the band you want to name.

Harry Spear emcee's the revue, and the Twelve Latin Quarter Boys and Girls, eight lovelies with two to a partner, show a lot of talent.

On the screen "Roar of the Press" has Jean Parker and Wallace Ford in one of those city room romances with murder on the side.

For chills there is Bela Lugosi in "The Invisible Ghost."

KEITH MEMORIAL'S 'THE DEVIL AND MISS JONES' RANKS HIGH IN FILM FARE

Arthur-Coburn Team Excellent

By PEGGY DOYLE

Multi-millionaire Charles Coburn has a fill-in at how the other half lives in the Jean Arthur-starring production, "The Devil and Miss Jones." And, for your information, Keith Memorial's opening-show audience including your film reporter, found his experience thoroughly diverting.

As the Miss Jones of the title, the blonde-maid Jean Arthur portrays a likeable, attractive salesgirl in the children's shoe department of the J. P. Merrick Department Store.

Just the day before the story begins, the employees, dissatisfied with existing working conditions, have hung "Richest-Man-in-the-World" Merrick in effigy on the city's busiest corner. Four hundred of them have joined a union organization at the brink of the best of Miss Jones' boy-friend, Robert Cummings.

And now it is evening and the store's stuffed-shirt directors have left the magnificent Merrick mansion after offering their usual inept suggestions and "Old Man" Merrick has gone into conference with himself. When he comes out of it, he has determined to be his own private detective, work in the store as one of his own employees.

Assigned to the children's shoe department by over-bearing department manager, Edmund Gwenn (of course, his identity is only his and his butler's secret), Miss Arthur takes him under her ashen wing. She tips him off when a forgoth store shopper snoops in his vicinity. She even slips him 50 cents for lunch when she misinterprets his Viennese media's non-lunch program for impecuniousness.

Coburn, as the richest man in the world masquerading as a 35-year-old has-been pussyfooting around the kiddies' shoe store in fear of the boss and losing his job, is immense. It is subtle, beautifully developed characterization, and is never better than in the Sunday outing sequence.

Adrift in a baby swim-suit on Coney Island with its 200-odd bathing suit dispensaries, he has lost his friend, Joe, and is trying to peddle the governor's gold watch gift when they take him to the 'lin' on suspicion.

All he wanted really was a nickel with which to phone his butler, an excellent portrayal by that excellent character actor, S. Z. Sakall, but the mere mention of butler and chauffeur has Police Sergeant Edward McNamara and the assembled police making circular motions in the neighborhood of their alivered temples.

Cummings, the brash union organizer, ultimately saves the day, permanently wins Miss Arthur's solid-gold heart and almost wears out his tonals and your patience with his patriotic recitative. Miss Arthur gives a love of a performance and Spring Byington, as she who is wooed by the department Jekyll-Hyde, again turns in a topping job.

This is a Frank Ross (he is Miss Arthur's off-screen husband) production, scripted by Norman Krass and released through RKO Radio . . . and decidedly worth your while.

On the same bill is a little B number, "They Met in Argentina," that has Maureen O'Hara, James Ellison, Alberto Vlla, Buddy Ebsen, Dion Costello (remember her in "Too Many Girls") and pleasantly entertaining qualities.

Circus Thrills and Joys For Para-Fenway Patrons

Life under the big top, with lions on the loose, comes to the screen

in "The Wagons Roll at Night," one of the new pictures at the Paramount and Fenway

Humphrey Bogart has a chance to be good and tough as the owner of the tent show, with the one soft spot in his hard heart his adoration of his little sister, Joan Leslie. Joanie is hidden away on a farm far away from the tanbark temptations while her big brother takes his carnival show all over the country. Somewhere along the circuit they pick up Eddie Albert, a daring young man who rounded up a vicious escaped lion.

Eddie becomes the regular lion tamer, replacing a gentleman who does better with liquor than he does with jungle cats. Maybe that doesn't cause a real knock-down Bogart battle! Humphrey has to hide out on the farm for awhile, and it's there that Eddie meets Joan and love blossoms. There are still more lions, though, and Humphrey is so mad he sends the boy who dares to fall in love with his little sister right into a cage with the maddened Leo you ever saw. Don't get too upset, boys and girls. Nice Mr. Albert gets the girl.

IT'S THEIR FLAG

And They're Proud of It

Faith

Pictures that prove just how high Old Glory rates with people of this country are these ... of students (above), of all types and ages, in a New York evening school, who want to be Americans. When they say "I pledge allegiance to the flag" their hearts are in the words ... for many of them have felt the iron heel of oppression, and they know the Stars and Stripes symbolize freedom. This man (right) is aged, but the sentiment is ageless as he salutes his, yours and my flag. President Roosevelt has designated May 18 as "I Am An American Day."

Gas Test in Progress Aboard Jap Warship

Salute—This woman knows just what "I am an American" means as she salutes the flag, a replica of which she wears on her breast. She knows that it means "I am free . . . free to worship, free to speak, free to help govern my country, America."

Off China—Rarely does the Japanese government release pictures taken aboard their ships of war . . . but they did pass this showing a gas drill in progress aboard a battleship off the China coast. Smoke is not coming from gun muzzle, but from stack in rear of control tower.

THE PROPOSED celebrations of "I AM AN AMERICAN DAY," which has been designated by President Roosevelt, the Governors of many States and the Mayors of many cities as Sunday, May 13, have now assumed the proportions of a patriotic tidal wave.

Various will be the ways of these celebrations on that day and, in fact, during the whole following week in many of our schools.

But in all the ceremonies throughout the country "The American's Creed," by William Tyler Page, should be repeated by every young man and woman who has just come of citizen's age and all newly naturalized persons. This is that great creed:

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a Republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag and to defend it against all enemies."

And then let ALL AMERICA repeat this second Confession of Faith (reprinted by permission of the MacMillan Company):

"BECAUSE I AM AN AMERICAN I believe: In fair play—in good sportsmanship—in being kind and helpful to others—in co-operating with others for the good of all—in respecting the opinions of others—in respecting the rights of others—in the right of free discussion—in settling conflict by conference—in the dignity of work—in equal educational opportunities for all—in respecting the rights of private property—in open opportunity for the individual—in the rule of the majority with just consideration of the rights of the minority—in an honest ballot—in freedom of speech—in freedom of the press—in freedom of religion—in justice for every citizen—in trial by jury—in arbitration of disputes—in orderly legal processes—in freedom from unreasonable search and seizure—in the right to petition the government for a redress of grievances—in the right of the people peaceably to assemble—and in the responsibility of every individual to participate in the duties of democracy."

We must then resolve to LIVE every word of it—so that "I AM AN AMERICAN DAY" shall not have dawned in vain.

"AUNT LIZZIE" DEEVERS observed her 110th birthday yesterday in her three-room home down in Sapulpa, Okla.

If the venerable old lady had not contracted influenza a few days ago, the occasion would have been more romantic.

For Aunt Lizzie, who calls herself a "fast-steppin', giddy girl," intended to be a bride for the tenth time.

Instead, she stayed in bed, contenting herself with the hope that—

"We're goin' to be married just as soon as I'm able to get up and cook."

During her long lifetime Aunt Lizzie saw twenty-six Presidents in the White House and watched soldiers in five generations march away to fight in eleven United States wars, including the contest with the Confederacy in 1861 and the attempt to make the world safe for democracy in 1917. She was young when gold was discovered in California and old when dust storms began to ruin the Middle West.

She knew conditions before and after such inventions as the telegraph, vulcanized rubber, the sewing machine, the trans-Atlantic cable, the phonograph, the electric light, the radio, the motion picture, the automobile and the airplane.

But all of us—even those who will die before they reach the half-century mark—can be as fortunate as Aunt Lizzie.

It is possible for us to make the acquaintance of all the Presidents, all the generals and all the inventors and discoverers.

All we have to do is to get good books and read them.

"BEST DRESSED WOMEN" buy clothes to please men, says Elizabeth Hawes, noted designer and fashion authority. The men may not necessarily be the women's husbands.

Miss Hawes is of the opinion that the feminine ear is remarkably susceptible to masculine flattery, and that anything an attractive man says in a woman's favor is apt to be taken seriously.

This is probably true in many cases, but we do not believe it is true in all cases.

Most women are sufficiently "ruggedly individual" to dress to please themselves.

They know what colors and what types of dresses and hats look best on them, and no amount of masculine influence will make them buy garments which they regard as "wrong."

It might be safer to say men dress to please women.

If a wife or fiancée makes disparaging remarks about a husband's or boy friend's tie or hat, it is a pretty safe bet that the offensive apparel will go into a drawer and never reappear.

The Talk of Boston by Pauline Warren

THE OTHER DAY we took a walk with three youngsters. Two of them are twins, and, we might add, probably the prettiest set of twins in all Boston, definitely future glamour girls. They are Sally and Betty Jardine, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alexander Jardine of Beacon street and, being 12 years old, consider themselves quite sophisticated young ladies. For years they have been attending dancing classes and their rhumba is superlative.

While we were strolling along the Esplanade, they were chattering gaily about a party, which is to be given for them soon, to the third little girl, also 12.

Her name is Teresa Parker and she is more interested in studious matters than in ballroom dancing. Her forte is ballet dancing, getting A's and B's in all her subjects and presiding over a "Bookworms Club," where youngsters, from 10 to 12, pool their books and meet each week to review them—if you please!

TERESA'S face clouded as the frolicsome twins chattered on about their party, particularly when they announced gleefully that, for the first time in their lives, they would be allowed to make it a real grown-up event with dancing and boys and everything.

"Thanks, much, for the invitation," said Teresa, who is quite shy, "but I don't think I better come if you're going to have boys. I just don't know any boys."

"Oh, that's all right," replied one of the adorable mixxes, as she rhumba-ed all over the Esplanade, oblivious of the admiring passer-by, "we have a blind date already all arranged for you. He's just our age—12 years old—and a good dancer and you'll like him heaps."

Teresa has been living in delicious terror ever since and wakes up mornings wondering if the "blind date" will like her and dance with her.

PROBABLY the most puzzled young man in this town is Herbie Sulkin, who can squeeze almost any tune out of his accordion for you.

For quite some time now, "Herbie" has been invited, each evening, to share a drink with a somewhat inebriated gentleman, who always sits at the same table at the place where "Herbie" works.

Each night this man insists that he likes "Herbie" very much, so much in fact that he is going to give him a car. As "Herbie" is not accustomed to having motor cars thrown at his head, he sensibly discounted this for a long while as a general impulse to be stifled in soberer moments.

But the man became more and more insistent that "Herbie" come to his office and claim his gift, each evening reproaching him in heart-touching tones for not having done so.

ONE fine day—"Herbie," driving about the countryside, noted he was near the office of this man and decided to drop in, not to claim the car, of course, but just to say "Hello."

This was his experience:

Several secretaries interviewed him and then he was finally ushered in one of the most sumptuous offices he had ever seen. At an enormous desk sat his friend who was gazing at Herbie's card with great bewilderment.

"You wish to see me?" asked the executive, without a single glint of recognition in his eyes.

• THE JARDINE TWINS, BOSTON'S PRETTIEST
Betty and Sally with Their Pet Cat, "Ring"

"Don't you remember me?" answered "Herbie." "I'm the man who sits at your table every night and plays your favorite numbers."

"There must be a mistake," puzzled the executive, "I'm sure I've never seen you before."

Herbie, noting the man was obviously telling the truth, got out as quickly as he could without saying anything more.

But that same man—you guessed it!—was back that night and again bawling out "Herbie" for not coming down to get his car!

HERBIE, by the way, who can double in brass and play the piano, as well as the accordion, is very popular on the North Shore. In fact, North Shore hostesses have a special nickname for him. They call him "Stormy Weather." It was tacked on him by Mrs. Wagon Seyburn of Grose Pointe, Mich.; Palm Beach, Fla., and Beverly Farms, Mass.

Mrs. Seyburn is a sister of Mrs. Dodge Sloane, who owns that remarkable string of racing horses and is one of the most popular matrons on our North Shore, where she spends every summer.

"Stormy Weather" just happens to be her favorite tune and she claims only Herbie can play it to her liking. So she dubbed him that—and it stuck so well that now Herbie actually receives mail addressed only to Stormy Weather, Boston, Mass.

Wonderful detectives—those postoffice clerks!

GENE TUNNEY PENS
NEW BOOK
By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 2—Gene Tunney is writing a book . . . Monte Proser will give away an automobile each week when he converts Madison Square Garden into a night club. Girls who accompany uniformed men there will be admitted free . . . Alberto Dominguez, who wrote "Perfidia" and "Frenesi," is organizing his own rumba band . . . "Bugsy" Goldstein and Pittsburgh Phil will be executed the week of June 9 . . . Al Jolson insists that he doesn't know his true age—because the silver cup on which his birth-date was inscribed was lost when his family came to America. In Florida last week, Jolson asked his father the Rev. Morris Reuben Yoelson: "How old am I?" The venerable man immediately replied: "Al, you're 47." . . . "How'd you know?" asked Al . . . "Because," said his father, "last year you were 46."

DORE SCHARY, the Academy Award scenarist, has been assigned by Metro to write the screen play for Paul Gallico's "Joe Smith, American." Schary now is en route to Washington to see Lowell Mellett about federal co-operation in this movie about our defenses . . . Sandra Rambeau, who returned from France this week to deny the story that she had married Gen. Von Epp, confides that she'll return to Paris . . . At a dinner party attended by Justice Roberts of the U. S. Supreme Court, one of the ladies present heard the jurist say: "A man cannot consider himself a real man, unless he knows how to milk a cow." . . . The lady, who was most inquisitive, made a private poll of the Supreme Court bench, during a series of SANDRA RAMBEAU parties at which she met all the members of the court . . . She reports that of the eight justices now sitting, six know how to milk a cow.

MARGOT STEVENSON, the ingenue, has a rich theatrical heritage. Her father, the late Charles Alexander Stevenson, was the most famous leading man of his day . . . At a party this week, Margot told of her father's accomplishments. "He won his fame with 'DuBarry,'" she stated . . . "With the real DuBarry?" someone asked . . . "This was better than the real DuBarry," Margot explained. "This was with Mrs. Leslie Carter—as 'DuBarry'." . . . When members of the Drama Critics' Circle submitted their script for the prize broadcast, radio officials assured them that the script was too long for the time allotted and would have to be shortened. The critics—who always know just what portions of a play manuscript should have been eliminated—couldn't agree on cutting their own script. And so radio men simply cut the broadcast when the time was up.

ROARK BRADFORD, the writer, now is cruising on Hank Friedberg's yacht, off New Orleans. Bradford's cruising cap carries the title "Yom Skipper" . . . Leo Carrillo, who refuses to get off his horse, received a ear lined with kidskin matching the color of his horse . . . Professor Gustav Eckstein, of the University of Cincinnati—who is one of the characters portrayed in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," will play that role in the benefit performance this summer, when Coward, Kaufman and Hart, Danny Kaye, Gertrude Lawrence and others will perform . . . Monty Banks, husband of Gracie Fields, the British star who now is in Hollywood, stated that he will ask her to play a benefit for the Italian children . . . Count Rene de Chambrun, Laval's son-in-law, will return to New York within the next few days . . . Ben Bernie led to fill a three-minute stage wait, at the RAF show at LaGuardia Field, while Libby Holman sang "Body and Soul" backstage, for Johnny Green—who wrote the song but had forgotten the tune.

A NOTED PRODUCER recently met Eleanor Roosevelt for the first time and tried to interest her in the establishment of a National Theater. "In almost every country in Europe, the governments sponsored a National Theater and it brought immeasurable benefits to the drama," he told her. "Now you, with your great influence and leadership, could help the American theater folk, by starting a National Theater movement." "Oh, no—I just can't do it," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "I have enough to do right now—arranging so that I don't have to walk through any picket-lines."

ON the SIDE by E. V. DURLING

A BRITISH ship captain has suggested that the United States form a fleet of rescue ships to pick up crews of ships torpedoed at sea. This is certainly a splendid idea . . . It is now announced that Will H. Hays, czar of the movies, has not entirely banned the wearing of sweaters by cinema cuties. He has only banned the wearing of sweaters that are from two to three sizes too small for the wearer . . . It is so difficult to get some types of merchandise in New York that the buyers are taking the sellers to lunch . . . Mrs. William D. Byron of Maryland, a mother of five young children, is to run for Congress. Hope she wins. We need more mothers in Congress . . . A disillusioned Detroit, a working wife who gave $31 of her $36 weekly salary to her husband says her husband used her money to entertain other women and now has left her, and the poor girl adds: "Besides he took my fur coat. Was that right?" None of what this husband did seems right; but I understand in Michigan the law states a wife's clothing belongs to her husband.

ED HOWE, a close observer of women, horses and men said: "Every woman thinks she has a natural taste for arranging flowers." "The smaller the woman the more she loves to impose on a big man." "When a woman starts out to reform she only thinks of the faults of men." "Unless a woman is careful when she wears a play suit or slacks she will look funny." "For every man fooled by a woman, 50 women are fooled by a man. And for a woman to be fooled by a man is sometimes serious business."

WRITES A NEW YORKER: "Note a new hormone which will cause people to grow taller has been discovered. So tell the 'cute, little tricks' to cheer up. Perhaps they, too, can become tall and fashionable" . . . Women stand pain better than men do. But this is not because they are braver. Nature provided for this type of feminine endurance. What hurts a man, also hurts a woman but not so much . . . "Where can I sell stories for children?" is a query. First long step toward success is initiative, ma'am. Just go to the public library children's section; note the names of firms publishing stories and write to them.

ADD LISTS of things to keep in mind when considering the European situation: In 1932, Ernst Thaelmann, Communist candidate for President of Germany polled 5,000,000 votes, as compared to 11,000,000 polled by Adolf Hitler . . . Any forgotten celebrities or front page figures of the yesterday in your home town? MY DAY By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

ON THE TRAIN FROM EUGENE TO PORTLAND, Ore.—Yesterday began well because our friend of the Southern Pacific Lines, Mr. Lathrop, invited us to breakfast with him on the train. Our plane was a little late, but we enjoyed the trip.

In Medford, Ore., the Twenty-Third Club presented me with a box of preserved salad pears, all of very beautiful colors, but a little difficult to carry, under one's arm. I hope, therefore, that my daughter will let us eat them while we are with her.

The drive from Portland to Eugene was very lovely and reminded me of the country back of the Hudson river. The dean of the University of Oregon, Mr. Carl Onthank; his wife and daughter, came to meet us and were most kind and thoughtful.

I enjoyed the evening at the university, as I always do when I have an opportunity of being with young people. It was the students' evening, and so Mr. Gleason Payne, the student body president, introduced me. A fine-looking boy, and from what the dean told me about him I felt that the future could hold few insurmountable obstacles for him, because he has already met and conquered so many.

THIS MORNING we left the hotel rather early and went to visit NYA resident centers. The boys' center is being built largely by the boys themselves, and many of them were at work under excellent foremen. They have a fine vocational school in Eugene, functioning in co-operation with the program which Dr. John Studebaker, head of the Federal Bureau of Education, has sponsored. Here boys and girls on NYA, people on WPA, and students, are obtaining re-training. The school runs 24 hours a day, and every department is run the way a business or shop would actually function.

We stopped at a girls' resident NYA house, where everyone seemed happy. It is similar to many others throughout the country and also has a sewing project. Now we are on our way back to Portland.

BUY GANG STORY
FOR ROBINSON
By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 2—"The Night Before Christmas," which sounds like a child fantasy, and is really a good old red-blooded murder story, has been purchased by Warners. The night the play opened on Broadway a Warner scout reported that it would be perfect for Edward G. Robinson since it has the flavor of "A Slight Case of Murder"—but there was bidding from other studios.

Today, however, Jack Warner closed the deal via telephone and this yarn about robbers who open a luggage shop next to a bank for purposes of tunneling through to the vault will be produced in the summer with Eddie. What odds am I offered that George Raft will not be in it? For I doubt if Warners will ever try to put Eddie and George in the same movie again.

IF GINNY SIMMS and Kay Kyser are married, and everyone thinks they are, why don't they admit it? He never looks at another girl and she's always with him and it can't be that they fear marriages de-glamorize careers. That's an outdated idea. Be that as it may, Ginny has been signed to a long term contract at RKO and her first stint will be with the boy friend in his next musical as yet untitled. After that she'll appear in pictures with other players when the band isn't on tour—because Ginny isn't giving up her singing job with Kyser for any movie deal.

RISE STEVENS

Like the best yet. He will engage space at one of the studios with regular sets for the tests which will be made under the supervision of Madame Ouspenskaya. These tests will be available to all studios and what a break it is for the newcomers to be coached by Ouspenskaya. By the way, she has been signed by Warners for the role of Fats' grandmother in "Kings Row."

HEART-WARMING is the news that Jack Warner has signed that grand old actor of the silent days, Hobart Bosworth, to a term contract. When "The Sea Wolf," Bosworth's greatest movie and stage vehicle, was previewed in San Francisco, his reception was a surprise. He received just as much attention as any of the stars of today, proving that the fans are loyal to the players they love. Bosworth's first role is that of a minister in "One Foot in Heaven," which will star Freddie March.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Brenda Marshall and Bill Holden are planning a June wedding. Her divorce from Richard Gaines becomes final then; Fanny Brice's mother, who had been sick for some time, passed away a few days ago. Ann Pennington, friend of Fanny's for many years, is visiting her. Ann has been out on personal appearance tour with the Scandals and doing all right; Hollywood real estate agents please note: Rise Stevens and her husband are looking for a house; Danny Danker flew to New York today on business; Margaret Ettinger is in Las Vegas on special business; Baron Otto Von Malde, who, believe it or not, is Jack Oakie's stand-in, with Patsy Kelly at Charley Foy's supper club.

DOLORES, who opened at the House of Murphy, has the pep of Carmen Miranda and is very cute; the Herbert Marshalls, Dorothy Lamour and Wynn Rocamora in ringside seats, applauded her; Mrs. Warren William is suffering with an eye infection; Al Hall and Gloria Lynch, former Earl Carroll girl, are now a duet; Rita Johnson and Stanley Kahn, her bridegroom, have taken a house in Westwood; the Ralph Blums hosted a party at Ciro's with Ginger Rogers and Jean Gabin; Loretta Young returns tomorrow after spending a few weeks in New York with her bridegroom, Tom Lewis; Betty Grable, who has been very sick with an abscessed tooth, was able to report for work at 20th Century-Fox today; Mary Brian, looking oh, so happy, lunching at the Brown Derby with Jon Whitcomb, her fiancé; the girl with columnist Herb Stein was Jean Ames.

Can Love Have A Moratorium?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I went with a girl I've known for five years. Then she broke off our friendship. About a month ago we started going together again, and now she wants me to give her up for six months, saying that by that time I ought to know whether or not I care for her.

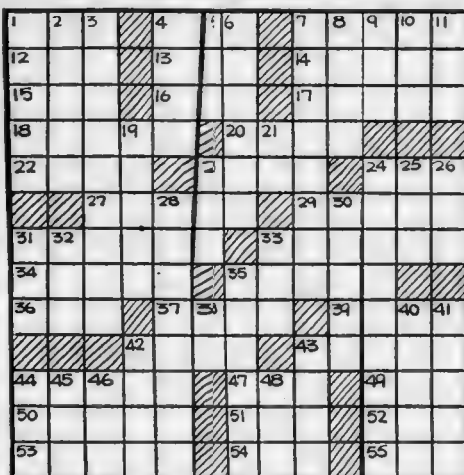

I am devotedly in love with her, and she told me she always liked me a lot better than any other young man she ever knew and said she wouldn't change her mind. She expects me to call her up after the six months is up. What do you think about such an arrangement? Michael.

Human nature being what it is, I am always a little suspicious about young men and women who declare "moratoriums" of this sort. If it isn't going to make you too unhappy during a six-month separation, and you think the girl has asked for it to discover her own true feelings toward you, it might be well to try it out.

The fact that she broke off with you before raises the question that she might be flirtatious and fickle. It's up to you, if you care enough to wait until the six months is over. In the meantime, I should certainly cultivate any attractive girl who happens to appeal to your fancy. It's a great mistake for a man, or a woman either, to be too humble.

MEATLESS SAVORY CASSEROLE

- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 2 cups canned tomatoes
- 2 cups canned peas
- 1 cup chopped or sliced ripe olives
- 2 tbs. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. chili powder
- 1/4 cup liquid from peas
- 1 cup grated quick-melting American cheese

Boil rice in salted water until tender; drain. Heat oil in frying pan, add onion, garlic and celery and fry until vegetables are wilted. Remove garlic, add tomatoes, peas and ripe olives and bring to a boil. Blend flour, salt, chili powder and liquid from peas and stir into hot mixture. Continue cooking and stirring until mixture boils briskly. Pour one-third into baking pan, spread with half of rice and one-third of cheese. Repeat, using cheese for top layer. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cream Refines Skin Texture

By ARLINE GOULD

THE EYES have it only when their sparkle and tint isn't completely obscured and overlooked... because around them the skin is creped, lined and shadowed. So if you're just beginning to notice these invaders making off with your fresh, youthful appearance... or if you've been long-suffering about it (shame if you haven't done something)... you're just the one to be benefited by the marvelous opportunity to get one of the really efficacious eye creams... the $2.50 size for $1... starting tomorrow!

We don't care what's stamped its impress in crow's feet or shadows around your eyes... you can look fresher, you can even smooth out the lines and crepiness faster than you'd expect... if you use this particular eye cream, because it has the merest vestige of astringent ingredients in it... to help refine skin texture immediately.

No one in the world could guarantee that you can get a baby-land look of smoothness and clarity if you don't also go after the underlying causes... eliminate the fatigue, worry, eye strain... or whatever... for these are bad actors against your beauty... even more so than piled-up birthdays.

It's never too early to start using an eye cream... once you've attained voting age. It can be a preventive measure against the effects of your newly-acquired independence about late nights and all the privileges of running yourself down that go with maturity. Several times a week is your quota.

This eye cream deserves a particular cheer also for its marvelous texture... the richness of it... the absorptive power of it... and you'll agree with us that it will help you turn back the years quite amazingly.

To learn about this special on an astringent-vent eye cream, a $2.50 size for $1, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Home and Kitchen :- Entire Dinner in One Dish Handy on Busy Days

By MARTHA LEE

"THE WORLD is so full of a number of things," especially in springtime, that instead of being "happy as kings," we are more apt to be busy as bees. What with the garden to plant and weed, the remnants of housecleaning to look after and spring sewing to finish, just where are we going to get the time to cook meals for the family?

With all the energy we burn up, dashing from one thing to another, good nourishing food is as essential now as at any other time of the year. And the homemaker who is onto her job meets the situation by having at her fingertips a number of satisfying meals which take very little preparation. They may be either quickly cooked dishes—or on the contrary, dishes that are cooked slowly for a long time.

In the latter case, almost the entire dinner is cooked in one dish, and it requires little watching. It may be brought to the table in the dish in which it is cooked. Here are some suggestions:

BEef BIRDS AND CARROTS

2 lbs. round steak
6 small carrots
1 cup bread crumbs, sifted
1 tsp. milk
1 egg
3 tbsp. butter
Salt and pepper
Have round steak cut thin in pieces suitable for individual servings. Season with salt and pepper. Place a carrot in each piece and roll. Fasten securely with string or toothpicks. Roll in egg beaten with milk and fine bread crumbs. Brown in butter. When nicely browned, add 1 cup water and cook in slow oven until rolls are done, about one hour and a half.

Place potatoes in the oven to bake. Serve with melted butter and a dash of paprika.

A combination fresh vegetable salad and an easy dessert of strawberries, or stewed fruits or rhubarb, with bread and beverage completes an easy and appetizing meal.

Another combination which is almost an entire meal in itself is this:

SPANISH LAMB SLICES

6 neck slices of lamb
6 slices onion
6 rings green pepper
1/2 cup rice
6 slices tomato
Season neck slices and brown in a little lard. Place in a roaster or casserole and on each slice arrange a slice of onion, one of tomato and a pepper ring filled with rice which has been partially cooked. Pour 1/2 cup water around the meat. Cover and cook in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for one hour.

ROLLED STUFFED STEAK

1 1/2 lbs. round beef, thinly sliced, or flank steak

1/2 cup French dressing
3 tbsp. bacon fat
1 medium-sized onion, minced
1/2 lb. (1 cup) chopped mushrooms
1 1/2 cups cooked rice
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. celery salt
Wipe meat with cloth. Cover with French dressing and let stand several hours. Heat 2 tablespoons bacon fat, add onion and mushrooms, and cook 2 minutes. Add rice and seasonings and blend well. Drain French dressing from steak. Spread stuffing on steak, roll lightly, and tie with string. Heat remaining tablespoon bacon fat in baking pan and brown rolled meat on all sides. Add drained French dressing, cover, and bake in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 1 to 2 hours. Makes 6 servings.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Thinking about slimming is a pleasant form of daydreaming. Even though you are not getting anywhere, you are inclined to put good intentions on a footing with the accomplished fact.

Prison Aid Group to Meet

Mrs. Charles F. Hovey, Mrs. Robert Herrick and Miss Gertrude Hooper are among the socially prominent women helping with plans for the second annual dinner of the United Prison Ass'n to be held next Tuesday evening at the Boston City Club.

More than two hundred socially prominent Massachusetts women who are actively interested in the rehabilitation of offenders of the law will be among the dinner guests. The speakers will be Reuben L. Lurie, chairman of the Massachusetts Parole Board; Miss Elizabeth Bode of the staff at the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women, and Mr. Roberts J. Wright, assistant secretary of the N. Y. Prison Ass'n.

Dinner guests will include Mrs. Cornelius P. Trowbridge, Mrs. Sheldon Glueck, Mrs. Colin W. Macdonald, Mrs. John S. Wilbur, Mrs. Bourne Pillsbury.

The less you have to think about exercise beforehand, the better. It helps to set a definite time for your daily dozen. The regularity tends to make it more or less automatic, like doing the dishes at 8.30. At 10 o'clock, you exercise.

So long as it is the same time every day, the hour is of no consequence. The only time not to exercise is immediately after a meal. You should wait an hour, preferably two. Exercising right after a meal won't keep the excess calories from turning into fat and it might give you indigestion.

The aim of a daily dozen is not to reduce. It won't help you to lose much weight, but it will give you a beautiful figure. You will scarcely believe your own eyes when you see the improvement that can be made over a period of time with just a little exercise every day.

EASY ROUTINES

Lying down exercises are twice as easy as the ones you take standing. You don't even have to hold yourself up! On your ho-hum days, lie down on the floor and take a good, big stretch. Stretch and pull until you reach every lazy muscle. Relax, and stretch again.

Over on your back now and flex your knees with feet on the floor, and pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles and dig the small of the back down against the floor. That's an exercise that rests your back. From the same position, keep digging the back in to the floor as you flex alternate knees up to chest.

Then sit up, clasp the arms about one knee and hug it to chest, and stretch the other leg straight out in front on the floor. Hold that position as you rock back and forth. Rock backward until the shoulders are on floor, straight leg in air. Then rock forward to sitting position again.

Best Form for Addressing

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My daughter is to be married in June and we have received several samples for the wedding invitations. One very well-known stationer told us to address the outer envelope to the matron of the family, and write the Mr. and Mrs. and the names of the children on the inner envelope. I have never received an invitation with this form used.

Another stationer told us to address the outer envelope to Mr. and Mrs. and then include the names of the children on the inner envelope.

Which form is correct, or is it optional?

The best form is to write on the inner envelope Mr. and Mrs. James Sumner, and to address the outer envelope to:

Mr. and Mrs. James Sumner
123 Forest Avenue
Sweet Home
New York

If separate invitations are not sent to the children, their names are written under the Mr. and Mrs. on both envelopes.

Check Mates for Vacation

ALL THE SPANDY looking new fabrics and patterns that look tub-fresh in the hottest weather offer you good buys for wear in or out of town. They're a wonderful idea for vacation traveling, because they are rayons which won't soil as easily as tub fabrics, won't show wear and tear as soon, and don't need the ministrations of an expert laundress to look "kept up." These two are from Harper's Bazaar, and you'll notice that they both make smart use of checks... including bows on hats and trim on handbags! Left, bandings of blue and white checks run across a gray-blue rayon. Right, green and white checks for a crepe suit, repeated on sailor hat and bag ends.—ANNICE BRINK.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

The Fifth Columnists, Chronic Crybabies and local propagandists are going to town these days, and a lot of their results are piling up on my desk.

As might be expected, they are doing some of their smoothest jobs on the youngsters, telling them how "frustrated" and "thwarted" they are, 'n' what a Dirty Deal we Oldsters have handed them, 'n' how the Downtrodden Should Arise. Which, to my idea, is tops in malicious mischief.

The immediate cause of this outburst is a letter from a sweet little kid in Milwaukee who doesn't want me to publish her name because if The Boss knows she is planning to marry she'll lose her job.

DEAR MISS ROBINSON:

"We post-war children are the most unfortunate victims of circumstances ever born. From birth we were cursed with a load of taxes we can never pay. Then the depression dumped us out of our cribs, not into colleges and jobs, but into hopeless unemployment where only five out of 50 boys get work."

"Forced to support ourselves, we girls cannot even marry openly if our intended husbands have fair salaries. We have to marry secretly and forego all the happiness of a wedding. As for children, my own mirror reflects the defeat in my eyes when I realize that the indorn mother love in me must be squelched because there will be no babies' steps to guide. You're mad—and I don't blame you—because Youth has ALWAYS BEEN HARD. LIFE IS HARD. THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS "A NATURAL RIGHT TO HAPPINESS AND SUCCESS." THERE'S ONLY THE CHANCE TO GET IN ON THE GAME AND SHARE THE BREAKS. AND MAYBE MAKE THEM A LITTLE EASIER FOR THE OTHER FELLOW."

You talk about "living life". Well, youngster, that's life. Don't kid yourself there's any Ideal State, or ever will be. Or any Ideal Humans. And they'd give you the Screaming Meanies if there were.

THE ANNUAL HULLABALOO about next season's debs is beginning all over again . . .

About this time of year, when the activities of last winter's debs slow down to a standstill, everyone begins to think about the new group of seventeen and eighteen-year-olds who are soon to complete their French and Latin conjugations, and emerge from their classrooms for a year of partying . . .

Among the girls who will officially begin to bloom as "buds of society" at the Empire Junior Dance tomorrow night are Olivia Coolidge, daughter of the John Gardner Coolidges, 2d, of Brookline . . . Olivia has two older sisters who have recently made their debuts and can give her expert advice on the subject . . .

Outstanding sportswoman among next year's group will be Cissy Madden, who has won a heap of tennis championships in a few short years . . . Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Richard Madden of Jamaica Plain, Cissy will return from the Anna Head School in Berkeley, Cal., in time to begin the round of debutante partying in June . . . She is a younger sister of "Babs" Madden who came out two years ago and is an ardent Red Cross worker . . .

October Debut for Sally Sears

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS P. SEARS of Hamilton have reserved an October date for a house dance to honor their younger daughter, Sally, another of next season's debs . . . The party will be somewhat of a duplicate of "Sister" Sears' elaborate debut last autumn . . .

Still other debs whose names will appear on the official list for 1941-42 are Edith Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Hall, Jr., of Cambridge, Jane and Sarah Wigglesworth, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wigglesworth of Chestnut st.; Hildegarde Forbes, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry S. Forbes of Milton, Anne Taylor and Olivia Swain . . .

It is to be announced within a few days by Toddy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Deane Wiman . . . Toddy and her two sisters, whose stage careers have been lovingly encouraged by their producer-father, have had many interesting experiences making their own way up the ladder of success on Broadway . . . and Toddy's fiancé, Shipwreck, won his nickname when the three-masted schooner on which he and his brothers sailed on an ill-fated research expedition, was smashed and sunk in a storm off Australia a year ago last winter . . . No date has been set for the wedding, but it is expected to take place in the early summer . . .

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1941

By AUSTEN LAKE

STAFF REPORTER, BOSTON AMERICAN

(Copyright, 1941)

LONDON, April—I never cease to be amazed at the patient calm of the British commonality—patience in the face of the Nazis' premeditated savagery and patience with the constant irritations of seeing the same men who shower them with bombs and incendiaries being transported through the heart of London as captives. Another nation, having property destroyed and civilian lives taken in this most unconscionable of all wars, might tear these men apart—though actually most of them are little more than boys in their late 'teens or early twenties—brash youths of impudent age who have been freshly shot out of British skies and are being conducted to internment in the North.

I stood on the ramps of Charing Cross Station as a detachment of Scots guards herded their latest "bag" of German pilot and bomber prisoners through the human sheep runs where commuters were hurrying to work—eight bombers whose snugly tailored field-gray uniforms contrasted oddly with the loose-fitting, brindle battle-dress of their bonneted chaparons; men who marched through lanes of curious, silent watchers with a stone-faced dignity, and returned stare for stare with bold indifference.

INTERNMENT KIT

There were many people on the platform whose homes and families had been blitzed, wantonly, bestially. But the crowd watched silently, shouting no imprecations or expletives of hate. Yet these were raiders who, the night before, had dumped destruction on the bomb-pocked city. The throng glowered as the tam-o-shantered Scots, bayonets fixed and trailing rifle bolts at shoe tops, jostled an opening and ushered their wards to waiting War Office cars, which rolled away to Whitehall and questioning by Intelligence officers.

Curious thing! All of the fallen eight carried duffel bags, or haversacks or even suitcases which appeared to bulge with personal furnishings. Most had great coats slung over arms and all walked with a jaunty, self-confidence. For, the Intelligence division tells me that every Nazi flier, prior to starting a bombing mission over England, packs an "internment kit," complete with spare clothes, toilet comforts and knickknacks, much as a weekend guest plans vacation stay in the country. They come prepared to stay!

SPANGLE OF SAVAGERY

"The blighters'll be bringing their golf clubs next," muttered a watching workman.

No golf clubs, but nearly every Nazi wore the silver rimmed, black centered Iron Cross on his heart side—spangles of savagery.

There would, explained a British Intelligence major, be no coercion in their questioning, no third degree or persuasion with lengths of rubber hose and twisted wire. The procedure was simple arraignment and a routine catechism on what targets they had hunted, locations of German aerodromes, oil caches, invasion plans, air habits and such et cetera, as is significant. Some talk, said the major, most don't.

There is one legitimate method to stimulate German tongues, I. e.

to grab a freshly tumbled Nazi, preferably young and impressionable, and conduct him to a nearby farmhouse or barn. There, with much grimace, he is locked alone in the darkness and left to his imagination while listening to the outside rattle of rifle bolts, the measured stamp of steel shoe heels and ominous sounds not calculated to soothe his fears. Then, when his apprehensions have simmered sufficiently he is marched to an adjoining room and seated before a hot, nourishing meal, replete with wine and tobacco.

SOME TALK

"It's very effective," testified the major, "not all respond, but sometimes a prisoner will expand after forging himself on the best meal he's had in a year, and begin to chat, first a drip, then a dribble, then whole torrents of talk. But I have never known the Intelligence to lay a violent hand on any prisoner."

The major, an iron-gray, lean-faced ex-tutor of European languages at Cambridge, said that all Nazi prisoners are astounded to find London reasonably intact and its people leading normal lives. Sometimes, for the moral effect, he said, they are taken on short tours through the downtown districts. "It's a study to watch their faces," he related, "as they see sidewalks crowded with shoppers, the heavy traffic rolling around Trafalgar and the store windows filled with food and goods. 'Unbelievable they keep repeating.'"

Nazi propaganda has assured Germany that London is an uninhabitable shambles, that the English are living on sawdust bread and roots, that epidemics are raging. "A German pilot captain told me recently, 'This is very discouraging,'" said the major, "We were told that the war is nearly over. I see now that it is not."

ARMY FOOD

There are a few internment camps in the vicinity of London, little barren, barb-wire hutments where prisoners stroll aimlessly like passengers exercising on the deck of a ship. I saw one such near Aldershot where the captives were sorted and tagged for permanent camps on the Isle of Man—a former British watering spot for Canada. Each is paid a stipulated rate and the same rations as the British army. Indeed, from observation, Nazi prisoners are better off than most of England's citizenry.

CAPTURED—Indeed, from observation, Nazi prisoners are better off than most of England's citizenry. The bulk of German prisoners, of course, are pilots potted by gun fire or fighter action—thousands of them. The bulk of German prisoners, of course, are pilots potted by gun fire or fighter action—thousands of them.

The bulk of German prisoners, of course, are fliers potted by gun fire or fighter action—thousands of them. But a growing proportion are being snatched in "Commando party" raids on the Nazi-held coast, forays conducted at night in swift, small vessels manned by intrepid volunteers. These are a slide squads who land, sometimes going 20 to 40 miles inland by motor cycle, grab their prisoners and try to bring them back. Some do, some don't. There are no rules to the game.

Though this is one of the ultra secret services of the war, I had access to a French-Canadian lieutenant who had been a former wine buyer in pre-war France and who now leads occasional Commando excursions. Latest of these was on the coast of Bretagne, where, long summers ago, he had boated and bathed with French friends.

QUITE AMUSING

He told of standing his launch off the familiar shore line and rowing up an inlet with seven British soldiers. "There was a little park beyond the town," related the lieutenant. "It was really quite amusing. We beached the boat and sneaked up . . . but you would have laughed . . . We find two Nazi soldiers courting their girls . . . it was a truly heart-touching scene . . . their arms about their waists, heads bent close."

"But this is business! So we flash our torches in their faces and jam revolvers in their ribs . . . The girls squeal a little, but my soldiers are not sentimentalists and put their big, rough hands over their mouths. One of the Nazis, a big fellow, gets a bit nasty, so my sergeant soothes him with a gun butt."

"And presently we are at the boat again, alas we tie the girls fast and put nice comfortable cotton gags in their mouths . . . you see! So they don't scamper to the commandant and say what gentlemen we have not been. Then we row out to the launch and, pouf! away we go, the quickest snatch in all Commando history."

What did he do with the prisoners, "ah—that!" said the lieutenant, "I turn them over to the intelligence. What they find out I do not know. My job was done."

Almost nightly, at various points along the coast, Commando parties carry on their nervous work, sometimes disappearing into the night and never returning. Their comrades never know what happens, for a Commando is undoubtedly shot at the spot of capture. Yet always there are more volunteers and more nocturnal raids. "It sharpens the wits," vouchsafed the lieutenant.

"Today I Am a Man!"

THE GIANTESS rumbled in her sleep and factories that had been idle and unkept for a decade became peopled with men and staggered back into action. Out of them rolled giant guns, slim, deadly airplanes, armored tanks, trucks, clothing, bunting for bandages. A nation was readying for war.

In Washington women cried out against it and were ejected from the Senate when they disturbed the deliberations of that body. In New York, London, Berlin, Rome, Vichy, Tokyo, wherever War stalked grim and deadly, strident-voiced men and warlike language into small black lines and these were carried around a quaking world. And in King's Johnny Everard petted an Alsatian dog.

His name was King. He was 10 years old. His brain in the degree of its development and its stage of maturity corresponded to that of a man of 75. King was a very smart dog. His intelligence was that of a normal four-year-old child. It registered all outside stimuli and furnished the necesreason. He had a memory. He was capable of intense love and loyalty. And he had a god, Johnny Everard.

To King, Johnny Everard was the fountain of all that was good. From him came meat and drink and sleep and freedom from fleas. And that was strange, because Johnny never gave him any of those things. Johnny's mother fed him. He fell asleep by himself. When he was sick, twice in his life, Johnny's father cured him by giving him doses of foul-smelling medicine which made him exceedingly uncomfortable for a day and then took the sickness away. Freedom from fleas was achieved ny was taken sick. In the 10 days, he lost about 15 pounds. He was a wilking skeleton and it was two months before he gained his weight and strength back again.

People talked of King's visit for months afterwards. They used it as a text to prove the latent faithfulness of a dog. But it really was a prophecy of the way King would come to and meet his end. Johnny was in that, too, just as he was in King's life as the Alsatian lived it.

THE DRAFT COMES

Johnny was 17 when he got pneumonia. But when he got well, it was the last physical trouble that King and he were to know together. He got well and he went on hunting and fishing. He didn't go away to college as most everybody did in that section because the depression hit the Everards and money was scarce. He took up work around the farm and he was running it when the Draft Bill was enacted.

The Everards talked over the bill. Mr. and Mrs. Everard were old and a little feeble. Johnny was 22 and in perfect condition. They knew he would surely be called. Johnny knew it, too, and sometimes it worried him and sometimes it excited him. It was a new experience and it beckoned to his youth. He used to talk it over with King down in the barn while he was doing the milking. "What kind of a soldier do you think I'll make, King?" he'd ask and sit there with his head against a cow's belly trying to imagine the answer. "Wonder if I'll get to be a sergeant?" Wonder if shooting those Army rifles are much different from shooting with an ordinary gun? Wonder if we'll get across? Some of the men who got over in the last one thought it wasn't bad. I don't think any of them really thought it was bad, even though they go around saying that war is a— "You know, King?" he'd say. "I'm going to like the Army."

King didn't know what he was talking about. But whatever it was, he was talking to him and that made him happy. He would sit looking up at Johnny with his head cocked on one side. He would whimper and lick his lips and sometimes he would grunt a bark. Johnny and a good hard bone or a piece of raw meat were the greatest thing in the world. But if you left it to King, he'd take Johnny every time.

He and Johnny went to town together when Johnny took his examination and he was glad as Johnny was when the boy passed with an almost perfect mark. He was right in the room with Johnny when Johnny packed his few belongings and started for camp. By Mr. Everard's smiling gravity and by Mrs. Everard's unshed tears, he knew that this going away was very serious. It scared him and when Johnny sat down to eat his breakfast, King sat beside him, whimpering deep in his throat. "SO LONG BOY"

Johnny took his head in his arm and ruffled his ears and said: "So long, Boy. Watch everything while I'm away. Don't let any thieves take that old brown cow doesn't get mixed down in the creek. Chase those rabbits up on Terrell's Hill. There ought to be a lot of new ones this spring. I'll see you in a year—maybe."

Johnny looked around to see that no one was watching. Then he leaned over and kissed King on the forehead. King licked his face and jumped up and down and barked. He didn't like it when they locked him in the house and the three of them went out to the car which stood in the driveway. He ran frantically around, looking for a place to get out.

When he heard the car start, he solved the difficulty by diving through a window. He was cut a little about the head and face by the glass through which he crashed but he caught up with the car before it had gone a mile.

He kind of disgraced himself at camp because it took all of Mr. Everard's strength to get him into the sedan and hold him there. He tore at the windows and doors and jumped from the back to the front seat. He was howling as Mr. and Mrs. Everard turned the car and started for home. It is possible that he knew he would never see Johnny again.

It was two days later that he ran away from the farm and made for the camp. He found it deserted because it had been just an embarkation point. But two hours' trailing turned up Johnny's scent and he followed it to a railroad platform where it disappeared. He hung around there for three more days until Mr. Everard heard he was there and came and got him.

When he got home he was listless. He was on another hunger strike. He lay by Johnny's chair in the dining-room when he wasn't in the barn or about the farm, always in a place where he and Johnny had spent a lot of time together. As the days passed, King got weaker.

Mrs. Everard wrote Johnny and told him how the dog missed him and Johnny felt so bad about it that he told a couple of men around the camp. The story got to the colonel and he told it to the press department and they gave out a little story to the newspapers. The story was one of those human interest yarns and people began to write in asking about King. In three days, the attention of the nation was centered on the dog.

BROKEN-HEARTED

King didn't know or care. He just sat there or lay there with his face between his paws, stirring only when a car or a person turned into the farmyard. Then he would rise and totter away to investigate. When he found he wasn't Johnny, he would come back to his place in the dining-room.

The Army by this time was so interested that they sent the best veterinarian to look King over. Their verdict was that King was sick of broken-heartedness. Meanwhile, Johnny had been shipped to the West Coast with an artillery unit and one day somebody suggested that they send King out there to be mascot of Johnny's company so that the two could be together again.

So they packed King into a plane and flew him 2500 miles across the country. King didn't care. He was sleeping most of the time now and dreaming of a dog's heaven in which he and Johnny roamed woods and fields together.

He walked out of one of those dreams to find them lifting him out of the plane. He woke up listlessly. And saw Johnny! He tried to jump up but his muscles wouldn't obey his brains. All he could do was to lift his head and whimper. Johnny leaned down and kissed him, even though about thirty soldiers were watching him.

Strangely, they didn't laugh because tears were in their eyes. King's long tongue licked out and touched Johnny's cheek. King whimpered a little. And then he was dead.

They gave him a soldier's funeral and buried him with military honors. King Everard was the first American casualty in the second World War.

by a gray sulphurous powder which was sprinkled upon him by almost anybody.

The first thing King remembered was being carried inside the coat of a sturdy 12-year-old boy from his mother's side where he fought with three other puppies for his meal to a farmhouse in which he and Johnny and the other Everards were to live for the next 10 years. The boy was Johnny Everard.

Perhaps that is where King got the idea that Johnny was the source of everything good because, at first, Johnny fed him from a milk bottle with a nipple on it because King had been taken from his mother a little too early to shift for himself.

A DEVOTED PAL

As he grew from a puppy into doghood, Johnny taught him almost everything he knew. He taught him to carry things like the mail and small bundles of groceries and anything that Johnny had thrown with the orders, "Go fetch it, King."

Johnny showed him where the rabbits lived and sent him on his first uncertain-legged chase of them. He developed King into a fairly good retriever of birds and squirrels that he brought down with his shotgun. He taught him the joys of riding in an old Model-T and appreciated him as he became the best fighting dog in that area. He also taught him how to shepherd cattle and bring them in for the milking.

Once when Johnny was sick, King took up a vigil outside his door. Johnny was sick, very sick. They thought for a while he wasn't going to beat the pneumonia that held him in bed with a raging fever. The doctors and the nurses fought it tooth and nail for 10 terrible days. And all that time, King held his post.

After the second day, he wouldn't take food. He would be facing the door of Johnny's bedroom with his nose between his paws. When Johnny moaned or talked wildly in his delirium, King's ears would come up and he would raise himself to sit with his ears cocked, listening. When Johnny's voice raised in delicious shouts, King would whimper. But he wouldn't bark. He knew there was something wrong and that Johnny wasn't himself.

On the 10th day when Johnny passed the crisis, King seemed to realize it. He got painfully to his feet and staggered away from the bedroom door. He took a little food and then lay down to sleep. But he wasn't the dog he was before John-

Congress Mail Against War Or Convoys

WASHINGTON, May 2 (INS)—A canvass of congressional mail, usually a reliable barometer of public opinion, today disclosed strong sentiment throughout the country against convoying ships to Britain or this country's participation in the war.

The International News Service survey, covering virtually every State in the Union, showed, however, that there is a wide sectional difference of opinion.

Throughout the Middle West and most of the Far West, letter writers were almost solid, sometimes as high as several hundred to one, against convoys and war. In the South, on the other hand, the feeling ran about 50-50, with some districts even showing a majority in favor of armed intervention.

New England was running around two to one against convoys, while the sentiment in the industrial East seemed about four to one for a stay-out-of-war policy.

Most Congressmen said the volume of mail was very light, considering the importance of the issue, and many attributed this to "public bewilderment."

SEN. CLARK ASSAILS U. S. WAR ACTION

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 2 (INS)—U. S. Sen. Bennett Champ Clark (D.) of Missouri was on record today with a strong denial of claims that Great Britain in the current war is fighting "America's battles," or that the British navy is protecting the United States from attack by the Axis powers.

Addressing University of Missouri students last night, Sen. Clark declared:

"If I had believed for one moment that the American frontier was on the Rhine, or that our first line of defense is or was the British navy, then as an American Senator and as an American citizen I would scorn the idea of using the British as mercenaries, and of making ourselves hucksters of munitions and vital supplies to the saviors who are fighting our battles to preserve our liberties.

"If I believed the British were fighting to protect us I would regard the gift of mere money or munitions no more honorable than hiring a substitute for military service. I would regard it as a national stultification, a national infamy.

"In such a case, I would vote for war and be glad to march again myself, as I have done before, and are my sons march as they became old enough. But I entertain no such view."

U. S. OFFICIALS NOW WEIGH WAR ENTRY TO SAVE BRITAIN

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WASHINGTON, May 2—High officials of the American government today appear to be thinking more and more of the possibility of this country's actual entry into the war as the only means of saving Great Britain.

Hitherto, administration officials have talked of all methods "short of war" to aid Britain. At present, however, the trend of thought in high government quarters appears definitely to have passed that stage. Officials now talk of the necessity of saving the British at all costs.

Not only is this so in the private conversations of officials, but it is becoming apparent in the public statements of government spokesmen.

In fact, the administration's campaign to awaken the people to the gravity of the situation appears to be rapidly developing into a drive to prepare the country for the possibility of actual entry into the war.

It is more than three weeks now since any high administration official has mentioned American aid to Britain being restricted to measures "short of war." Vice-President Wallace was the last to refer to this phrase which for so long was a feature of the government's foreign policy.

In a speech before the Foreign Policy Ass'n in New York on April 8, Wallace said "we will help ourselves through helping England by all methods short of war."

This week, however, Wallace said the issue before the people soon may be "war or slavery."

Secretary of Navy Knox has been most outspoken in advocating outright participation in the war. He minced no words in his speech before the publishers convention in New York when he said that "this is our fight," and added "we can no longer occupy the immoral and craven position of asking others to make all the sacrifices for this victory which we recognize as so essential to us."

He also told his press conference this week that "everybody in this room is familiar with the fact there is a possibility of war."

Secretary of State Hull, the most restrained administration spokesman for aid to Britain, has gone so far as to say the "safety of this hemisphere calls for resistance wherever resistance will be most effective."

The administration generally appears to be absolutely convinced the Axis has designs on this hemisphere and will put them into effect the moment Great Britain collapses.

GEHRINGER RATES TED
OVER DI MAGGIO AT BAT

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1941

CLEVELAND, May 2—The Tigers had finished batting practice and were relaxing in the dugout before ducking down the runway for their last pre-game cigarette. Charlie Gehringer, Barney McCosky and catcher Billy Sullivan were watching the Red Sox hit. Ted Williams was at bat.

CHARLIE GEHRINGER

"There's my hitter," said Gehringer. "I'll take him over Joe Di Maggio any day. He'd lead the league in batting and home runs if he didn't have that long right field at Fenway Park. As it is, he'll probably lead it in hitting anyway. Didn't miss it by much last year." (Di Maggio .352, Williams .344.)

Sullivan was silent for a moment, and then: "But suppose you put Di Maggio (right-handed hitter) in Fenway Park. Think of the home runs he'd hit there."

"I know," said Gehringer, "but Di Maggio doesn't give us the trouble old Ganderneck (Williams) does. Gordon and Dickey hurt me more than Di Maggio."

"Look at the rhythm in Williams' swing, the wrist action. (Williams popped a ball into the right field stands to substantiate Gehringer's argument.)

"I've seen our pitchers make Di Maggio look bad at times, but never this kid. When he does miss a ball, it's only by a hair's breadth. He is never off balance."

The debate continued until Cronin stepped to the plate.

"You can have your Williams and Di Maggio," Sullivan challenged. "That Cronin gives me more headaches than any other batter in the league. I've been calling signals behind him for years, but I haven't fooled him yet. He's broken up a lot of ball games on me."

Bobo Newsom came barging through.

"But not on me, brother, not on me. Old Bobo will take care of those Red Stockings this afternoon. Good care of them. (He beat 'em, too, and Williams, Fox and Cronin made only one hit among them, a topped roller by Williams which Newsom himself bobbled.)

McCosky Idolizes Gehringer

Gehringer slipped down the runway, and McCosky said proudly: "I'll still take Charlie. Yes sir, soon today. Slowed up, sure. Doesn't hit .370 any more either. But he's my man. Always will be."

Gehringer, in truth has always been McCosky's man. The latter was only seven years old when Gehringer started playing second base for the Tigers and during his school days in suburban Detroit followed the G-man's every move.

McCosky, imagine, was still in high school when Gehringer was the Hon of the hour in 1934, the year Mickey Cochrane's team brought Detroit its first pennant since 1909. He was graduated from Southwestern High School (Detroit) in '35, the year the Tigers won the world championship. Like his idol, he was a second baseman then.

"Still would be if it wasn't for this," said McCosky, displaying a scar on his wrist which would make one shiver. "Almost had it severed tagging a guy at second. Used to tackle them, I guess. Anyway, they mowed me to the outfield so I wouldn't get killed."

Today, looking down from the press box, one couldn't tell McCosky and Gehringer apart at the plate, if it wasn't for Gehringer's No. 2 and McCosky's 21. Their batting stances are identical. Left foot well back in the box, right foot six inches nearer the plate and well forward, stepping into every pitch.

McCosky followed the pattern well because last year, his second in big time, he outdid his idol, .340 to .313.

No doubt he'll outstrip him again this year because Charlie's well along now. He'll be 38 on May 11, whereas McCosky was 33 three weeks ago, and is still on the way up. But Gehringer will always be the better hitter to McCosky. Idols are made to worship, I suppose.

Outlasted Many Shortstops

No wonder. Skip over Gehringer's years:

Breaking in under Ty Cobb when Detroit had Lou Blue on first, Gehringer on second, Topper Rigney at short, Fred Haney and Bobby Jones at third; Harry Heilmann, Red Wingo, Bob Fothergill, Heale Manush and Cobb himself in the outfield; Johnny Bassler, Larry Woodall and Clyde Manion catchers and George Daus the ace pitcher.

Think of the shortstops Gehringer has worn down: Rigney, Johnny Tavener, Frank Brower, Bill Akers (he's in the Army now), Helme Schube, Mark Koenig, Billy Rogell, Dick Bartell and now Frank Croucher.

And the managers he's been under: Cobb, George Moriarty, Bucky Harris, Mickey Cochrane and Del Baker.

Gehringer's legs are aching after 15 years heavy duty with the Tigers, so much so that he runs out to his position by the circuitous route behind shortstop. That's to keep on the grass cushion as long as possible.

A word about his subtle wit, and then we'll let him up. Marv Owen used to tell the best story at Sarasota.

Marv was a rookie with the Tigers, and was filling in at short one day. The first play was a fly on Gehringer's side of second base. Marv, eager to make good, raced over, knocked Gehringer down, spiked him in the process but held onto the ball.

Gehringer, never one to get excited, simply looked up at Owen and said: "Listen, young fellow, I can catch those, too."

Braves Face Champions

By JOE CASHMAN

William Boyd McKechnie must have felt at home as he walked down Gaffney st. today. He was about to enter the Wigwam and he was going to see the Braves play, and even though today's game was rained out Bill's home-sweet-home feeling must have been warm.

For seven years Wilkinsburg will hang his hat at the Teepee as manager of the Tribe. Then they changed the name of the team to the Bees and the name of the residence to the Hive. The Deacon didn't like either change. So he grabbed his chapeau and took it on the danno to Cincinnati.

BULLETIN
Today's scheduled Braves-Reds game was postponed because of wet conditions at Braves Field. The Reds will play a single game here tomorrow.

So he grabbed his chapeau and took it on the danno to Cincinnati.

The return to the old order, he said on his arrival in town, met with his heartiest approval. In fact, he seemed to be on the verge of waxing sentimental about it. But he couldn't bring himself

WILSON PICKS PORTER'S CAP TO WIN DERBY

Whirlaway First Named

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 (AP)—Whirlaway, from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, was the first horse to be named this morning for the 67th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Bill Whitley, agent for Trainer Ben Jones, dropped the name of the son of Blenheim II into the entry box at 7:42 a. m. (E. S. T.). Whitley stopped in the racing secretary's office for his mail before Whirlaway worked out and was about ready to leave when somebody informed him it might be a hunch if he was first in line. That's right," said Whitley. "First in the box, first to the wire."

FIRST IN LINE IN 1938
The agent recalled that Jones was first in line with Lavrin when he saddled the Woolford Farm winner in 1938.
It was another 40 minutes before the second horse was entered by Major Tom McCreary, trainer of

FIVE YEARS AGO—Sixty-second Kentucky Derby won by Norton L. Schwartz's Bold Venture in driving finish with 4-5 favorite, rev'd.

Hove Bowlers 20 Pins Off Leaders

ST. PAUL, May 2 (INS)—With booster squads on the alleys, moderate scores were the rule today at the American Bowling Congress, nearing the end of its 55-day run, and all leaders held their places for the fifth straight day.

Highest booster score last night was turned in by the Hove's five of Minneapolis, with a count of 2760, only 20 pins short of the tourney high for a booster squad, held by the P. V. Fuel and Ice Cream team of Minneapolis.

By DAVE WILSON

Barring poor racing luck, C. S. Howard's Porter's Cap should annex the lion's share of the spoils in the historic Kentucky Derby to be contested tomorrow afternoon over the mile and a quarter route at colorful Churchill Downs.

To my mind, at least, the bay son of The Porter and The Blonde stands right out in the light. He not only merits the top figure off his impressive score in the age-worn, Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace, but his condition cannot be faulted.

In his final speed trial preparing for the Blue Ribbon Classic, Porter's Cap took the track with better than 130 pounds in the saddle and whirled the full Derby distance in 2:04.4-5. Old timers will tell you that no other horse has ever equalled the feat.

Another highly important factor in Porter's Cap's favor is his ability to run over any sort of racing strip. Should it come mud, he'll be fully at home in the going.

L. Haas, who is capable as pigskin booters come, is slated to guide the destinies of the now famous Howard luck, and it clearly looks like only a question of clear sailing.

Our Boots, the bay filer from the Woodvale Farm, is the colt reckoned to give Porter's Cap the most trouble.

This son of Bull Dog has received a million-dollar prep right in the heart of the Blue Grass country, and only a few days back demonstrated his fitness by shelling the very daylight out of Warren Wright's temperamental Whirlaway.

Our Boots is slated to be ridden by the sensational Con McCreary, but your envoy just cannot visualize the Kentucky-owned thoroughbred showing the way home to Porter's Cap.

Dispose, hero of the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, lost considerable of a large following, including your envoy, by his poor showing at Jamaica, N. Y. However, there's a chance, just a chance, that he may be a different sort of horse in this race.

Off cold mathematical calculations, Little Beans, Boston's hope in the classic, doesn't quite measure up to Porter's Cap, Our Boots or Dispose, but he does rate close enough to warrant a small sentimental wager if you're the type.

Market Wise, Starator, Whirlaway, Blue Pair and Swain have shown their trainers enough to warrant staking in the race, but from this angle I can't see anyone of them.

BULLETIN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 (AP)—The eleven three-year-olds expected to run in the 67th Kentucky Derby tomorrow were entered today, an hour before the entry box closed at Churchill Downs.

Entry Clerk Larry Bogenschultz, however, kept the box open with the chance that some owner might make up his mind at the last minute to go after the $75,000 run for the roses. Closing time was scheduled for 10 a. m. eastern standard time.

J. Fred Byers' Robert Morris, The veteran was accompanied by Buckley Byers, son of the colt's owner and former Yale coxswain.

They dropped by the office after catching Whirlaway's workout in 60 seconds flat for the half-mile.

"We can do better than that," said the major. "If track conditions remain favorable, the horses we'll have to beat are Porter's Cap and Our Boots."

CARROLL WANTS RAIN

George Carroll, who stables in the same barn with Maj. McCreary, followed a few minutes later with Lou Tufano's Market Wise, son of Broker's Tip, winner of the famous 1933 "Rodeo" Derby.

Max Hirsch, who saddled Bold Venture to win in 1936, was not far behind with Robert J. Kieberg, Jr.'s Dispose, Flamingo and Bahamas stakes winner at Hialeah Park last winter.

Carroll was rooting for rain since the soft going would be much better suited for Market Wise, who has a bad foot. He selected Whirlaway as the horse to beat.

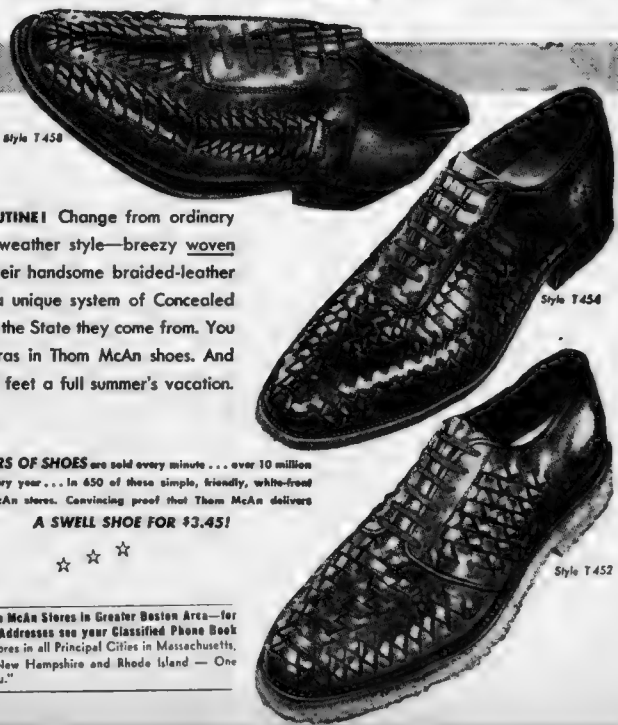

"There isn't one horse in this race to beat," replied genial Maxie. "We got to beat them all."

"My horse is fit and ready and rarin' to go," said former jockey Willie Crump as he entered Blue Pair, purchased two weeks ago by Mrs. Vera S. Bragg of Lexington from C. C. Van Meter and conqueror of Whirlaway in Tuesday's Derby trial.

PLENTY OF SPEED

"The saddle sore that bothered him early in the week is clearing up," said Willie. "He can go the distance and go like the wind. We got to knock off the 'Big Three' Continued on Page 53, Column 1

Vermont Gunners Worthy Of Place in Hearst Finals

By WALTER KILEY

A team which professes to be skeptical of its chances but none-the-less looms as formidable is the Woodstock Rifle and Pistol Club of Woodstock, Vt., which comes down to the 101st Infantry Armory for Sunday's championship finals of the W. R. Hearst Citizen's Marksmanship Competition.

"We were very fortunate in winning the recent championship of the Green Mountain League," writes William A. Gramling, secretary of the Woodstock rifle team. "But we do not expect to fire an average score in the Hearst finals as we are apt to be victims of buck fever." Woodstock showed no signs of buck fever in edging rival teams from Manchester, Morrisville and Northfield in the Green Mountain League gallery series of matches. In fact, Woodstock's scores measured up most favorably with the other 15 teams which it will fire against Sunday afternoon.

COACH A FARMER
The Woodstock Rifle and Pistol Club was organized in January, 1940, with a charter membership of 17. It now has 20 members. Carl S. Lewis, treasurer of the club, will act in the capacity of coach on Sunday. He is a 41-year-old farmer who has shown great improvement in his short shooting career.

"Budge" Leavitt is the team's highest scorer and the most experienced man on the team.

Leavitt is a 25-year-old telephone lineman and he shoots a Winchester 52 HB.

"Buster" Fallon is club president. A 35-year-old electric lineman foreman and his Winchester 69 cost him exactly ten dollars. "Sed" Taylor, third of the four team members, is a 35-year-old farm manager. Recently he dropped his Winchester 52 on a cement floor, badly cracking the stock and flattening the front sight. The rifle has been taped for Sunday's matches.

STARTS 1 P. M. SUNDAY
Bill Gramling rounds out the team. He is a 35-year-old postal clerk and shoots a Stevens Walnut Hill rifle presented to the club by a wealthy summer resident of Woodstock.

Other Green Mountain League teams warn not to take Woodstock lightly despite its professed pessimistic outlook.

All eligible teams will report to the 101st Infantry Armory, East Newton st., Boston, by 1 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, where Captain Pete Lambert, chief range officer, will be waiting to send them into the Hearst Championship battle.

HANEY SAYS YANK DUO BEST

ST. LOUIS, May 2 (AP)—Manager Fred Haney of the St. Louis Browns says there's not a smoother combination in the major than Phil Rizuto and Gerald Priddy, shortstop and second baseman of the New York Yankees.

Haney had just watched Joe McCarthy's sluggers crush the Browns two out of three games with the two rookies handling 22 chances between them without a bobbie.

The Browns manager dug a spoon into a container of ice cream in the locker room after the second licking yesterday and went on: "There's no doubt about it. Those kids are prize packages. The Yanks struck a gold mine when they picked them up."

"I don't believe there are any two men in major league baseball who can match them for covering ground, getting the ball out of their hands and working together as one."

"They're not only invaluable through their skill but in a psychological sense as well. It takes the heart out of the opposing team to see such phenomenal fielding—to see what appear to be certain hits turned into putouts."

N. Y. GARDEN HAS MILLION IN CASH IN WAR CHEST

COL. JOHN REED KILPATRICK, president of the New York Garden, has confided that the House that Tex Built has $1,000,000 stored in its strong box for use in any emergency that may result from present unsettled world conditions . . . The New York Garden has had a profitable indoor season, and it should also benefit during the summer months by virtue of its agreement that gives it half of the profits of Joe Jacobs' Twentieth Century Club.

The Colonel has not yet been able to iron out the affairs of the New York Americans . . . This club has lost money year after year and is now the stepchild of the National Hockey League . . . The Rangers have been the choice of New York fans, but in earnings they have not done as well as the Bruins . . . Boston is a much better hockey town than New York.

The Spring meeting at Narragansett Park is running well ahead of the Spring meeting of a year ago, according to President James E. Dooley . . . This makes it look as if the stockholders of the Rhode Island track are once more assured of a 50 cent dividend in June, and probably another 60 cent dividend later in the season . . . The Summer meeting at Narragansett Park should be a boom affair now that defense money is getting into wide circulation.

In Canada under the latest tax program, race tracks are hit for another 5 per cent.

By changing his legal residence from New York to Florida, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy will escape the high State income taxes in New York State . . . Florida has no State income tax . . . This situation has caused many millionaires to establish residences in Florida . . . The money normally paid for State taxes build and maintain lavish homes in Florida . . . The Kennedy Florida home is at Palm Beach.

Dan Carroll, who has been vacationing in Florida, is back in town and trying to pick race winners . . . Dan's boy, Edward, is once more directing Riverside Park at Agawam . . . This is a large recreation center . . . Edward got his early experience in such matters managing the downtown movie houses in this city.

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., still has a very large finger in the Massachusetts racing pie . . . He is responsible for the appointment of Judge Frank Bryan of New York as State racing steward at Suffolk Downs . . . Before the appointment of Bryan, Tuckerman's name had been suggested as a possible State steward.

Judge Bryan is a member of the old school of racing, and used to help put on the races at The Brookline Country Club in the days before legalized racing . . . He was first named as a State steward when local Republicans could not agree that one of their number was qualified to serve in such a post.

Boston money on Little Beans to win

THERE WILL BE a bundle of Boston money across the board on Little Beans, the Rocky Palladino Derby entry, to win with Jockey Gigi Moore up . . . There has been such a big play on Our Boots and Porter's Cap that the price on Little Beans has lengthened from 10 to 1 to 15 to 1 . . . Many persons who saw Blue Pair run so sensationally at Suffolk Downs last season will back this speedy 3-year-old in the Kentucky classic . . . Don't overlook Whirlaway . . . He lost at least 10 lengths running wide against Blue Pair the other day and was barely beaten . . . Blue Pair is priced at 20 to 1 . . . A good long shot.

Paul Bower is planning three more wrestling shows for Boston . . . He will then close the local season, and take The Angel on a tour to California . . . Later Paul will join the Grand Circuit parade, and expects to send some speedy trotters and pacers to the post.

CONNIE MACK IS enthusiastic over the success of night baseball, and has suggested to Tom Yawkey that the Sox play under the lights in Boston . . . A lighting plant would cost $105,000 to $110,000 . . . Joe Cronin doesn't like night baseball, which is one of the reasons Yawkey has not installed lights at Fenway Park . . . The Hartford club of the Eastern League is installing lights for night ball.

Hartford is a boom town as a result of the aviation and other war industries . . . Hartford is a farm club of the Braves and with a good team in the field it should have a big season .

But Bucky Walters, once a mediocre infielder, deserves to be rated right now as the best hurler in the National League and quite possibly the best man in the "clutch" in any league. He also is a good man with his bat, when nec-

Bucky stopped the nine-game winning streak of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, just as he had calmed the Flatbush fury at the same stage a year ago, with the most courageous and effective effort of the season.

The temperature dropped 16 degrees to 51 in Brooklyn during the game, and Walters' fingers got cold just like those of the 18,000 fans. But he was able to turn on the heat at the right moments.

With the score tied at 1-1 the determined Dodgers loaded the bases with two out in the ninth inning on Joe Medwick's double and two walks, one intentional. But Walters just took his time and struck out Pete Coscarart to send the game into extra innings.

In the 11th, after two were out, Walters stretched a hit to center-field into a double with a daring slide and scored on a single by Eddie Joost. When the Dodgers again loaded the bases in their half of the inning on two singles and a walk, Walters never wavered. He fanned two lefthanded pinch-hitters, Pete Reiser and Babe Pothol, to end the game.

The defection of the Dodgers gave the St. Louis Cardinals an opportunity to increase their first place margin with a 5-0 triumph over the New York Giants. It was the sixth straight win for the Redbirds, but the first time in their series with the Giants that their starting pitcher finished. The veteran Lon Warneke kept nine hits well scattered.

In the only other National League game the Pittsburgh Pirates rose up in the wrath that comes from long frustration and overwhelmed the Phillies, 13-2, with Russ Bauers around to it. He was too concerned over his Reds.

"And you won't ask why he should be concerned over a world's championship team if you've been reading the major league box scores regularly.

"We have a real fight on our hands to repeat this year, that's evident," he chirped. "We've lost four games in as many starts against the Cardinals, three out of four to the Dodgers. After 16 games we're at the 500 mark. In other words, the opposition we've faced in much tougher than we met last spring. And I understand the Braves, Giants and Phils, who we have yet to see, are all strengthened.

"So it looks like a ding-dong battle and plenty of anxious moments for Mr. McKechnie all the way.

Would the "Deacon" care to comment on the happenings in Brooklyn the past four afternoons? Twenty-four hours ago, he indicated, the answer would have been no, it now—

"That Walters fellow can pitch for my money any day. He sure put the sun back in the skies for us when he out-gassed those Dodgers in yesterday's ill-fated battle. He not only showed them the greatest pitching they've seen or will see this year, but he won his own game when he stretched an ordinary single into a double to get in position to score the winning run. Then he turned on the steam to whiff Coscarart for the final out, with the tying and winning runs on the sack.

"While we lost the three previous games over there, we were beaten decisively in only one of them. The Dodgers needed every break to win the other two. They won't always be as lucky. Don't get me wrong, though. Leo Durocher has a fine ball club, a very serious flag contender.

"They've got good pitching, plenty of power and a lot of hustle and spirit."

Tom Yawkey Issues Ultimatum To Manager Cronin's Critics

By HERB FINNEGAN

CLEVELAND, May 2—Marse Tom Yawkey had given the newsmen a plane ride from Detroit to this city, where, incidentally, the Sox open a two-game series with the league-leading Indians this afternoon.

The name of Cronin had come up during the air trip and during the 12 miles from the Cleveland airport to the hotel, one of the reasons being that the Sox shortstop had scored two men in the fourth inning with a bull's eye down the right foul line, as the Sox took the Detroit finale, 15-9. It was an old habit of Cronin's, and no accident.

HELL BE BIGGER

His fielding had been high class, too, much better than critics had anticipated.

"Try to ride him out of the league if you want," said the irate Yawkey. "But I'll stick with the guy. Take him off the field, and what's left?"

"Why, he's got more guts in his little finger than you or I have in our whole bodies. Cronin's a man, and he'll be a whole lot bigger man in baseball before I'm through with him."

Marse Tom had ridden in planes before, and it wasn't the barometric pressure talking. His laudation of his shortstop manager continued far into the night, long after the boys had said their prayers.

None of us had ever questioned Cronin's ability to hit ("that Cronin gives me more trouble than Williams or Joe DiMaggio," Billy Sullivan, Detroit catcher, had said). Several of us had questioned his ability to cover enough ground at shortstop to make his presence in the lineup worth while. A few, including the writer, had questioned his method of handling pitchers.

BOTH AGREE

He had been in Boston six years, and where were his Big Four? His team had won eight games this spring, and only Earl Johnson (one relief, one start) had won two. Wilson, Grove, Wagner, Dickman, Newsom, Ryba, Harris and Johnson had started for him in the 14 games to date.

Wasn't it time he decided on his starting pitchers and stuck with them?

"Cronin knows what he was doing," replied Yawkey. "And what he's doing satisfies me. I travel with him. I watch every game and I think things out with him every night. He gives me a good reason for everything he does on the field, but he doesn't have to. I know what he's doing and I haven't second-guessed him yet."

Cronin has been playing a bang-up game at short this season. And his hitting, of course, has been a treat.

He's been playing with a sore arm that would have kept any other 10 men on the bench, but he refuses to rest.

"I tried to make him stay out a week," said Yawkey, "but he wouldn't do it. He knows the club needs him. How am I going to quit on a fellow who won't quit on his club?"

Nobody's asking you to quit on Jo-Jo, Marse Tom.

NOT GETTING YOUNGER

Nobody in either league has more respect for the Frisco Kid who came up to the Pirates in 1925 looking as if he couldn't make the Bennet's industrial school nine. He probably couldn't have at the time, either, but through sheer stick-to-it-iveness he made himself the best shortstop in the American League, everybody knows the most valuable player in 1930, all-star shortstop, seven years running.

Nobody's trying to take away from Jo-Jo the glory that was his. Everybody respects the fight he has been putting up since last Jan. 1 to re-establish himself in the top-flight rank of shortstops. But Cronin can't last forever any more than can Charlie Gehringer.

By the way, next time we see you, Marse Tom, we must ask if you've ever seen Eddie Pellagrini of San Diego or Johnny Pesky of Louisville (both Sox property), play shortstop.

If you have, then you'd know what we mean by the expression: "There is no substitute for youth."

DiMaggio, as usual, leads off the new Red Sox batting order, with Pytlak, Williams, Doerr, Cronin, Foxx, Spence, Tabor and the pitcher following in that order—Pytlak got four hits in his first try at the No. 2 spot, and in the second inning his hit-and-run hunt scored DiMaggio from first with the help of a wild throw. . . . Doerr moved up to fourth in the batting array, made three hits. . . . Jimmie Fox, stung by being dropped in the list, knocked in three runs with his two hits. . . . despite the hit and run total, Earl Johnson pitched a decent game. . . . ask Charlie Gehringer. . . . Stan Spence lost Rudy York's smash in the sun in the fourth which let in two runs, but it was the first time in his life Spence ever played right field and he wasn't used to sun glasses. . . . if the wind hadn't been blowing against him, Ted Williams would have made two home runs and a triple as well as his first inning single.

Jimmy Pope Proudest Angler In Auburndale

Tuna and saffish and such as O. K. if you like them.

But you couldn't get little Jimmy Pope, 3, of Auburndale, to trade his prize 20-inch lake trout for a boatload of the big fish.

Jimmy had the thrill of his young life the other day when he caught the biggest trout lake since the ice went out in Fin Connecticut Lake. Pittsburg N. H.

Mrs. Frank E. Soule, his grandmother, was fishing with Jimmy when he made the catch, at Guide Jess Scott was there, to in case Jimmy needs any money to attend his feat.

Because he hasn't anything to show, small boys with large appetites are pretty practical about these matters. So Jimmy had a trout, nicely broiled, for his dinner. He stuffed himself instead of the trout.

Speaking of racing programs, the machine which prints the Jamaica program broke down yesterday after about 7000 had been turned out. The management then issued mimeographed sheets containing names of horses, jockeys, etc., at no charge.

Andrew Jackson Joyner, dean of American trainers, has notified the Pimlico management he is shipping George D. Widener's Year Chance to Maryland for the Dixie Handicap. The colt is training at the Erdheim farm of his owner near Philadelphia.

Level Best, probable favorite in Saturday's running of the $10,000 Pimlico Oaks, had another good tune-up for the mile and one-sixteenth event yesterday when she breezed six furlongs in 1:15. Dark Inn, the Wheatley Stable's candidate for the Oaks, indicated she is ready by stepping a fast half in 1:45 2-3.

Jockey Wendell Eads, who was to have ridden Whirlaway in the Kentucky Derby until it was decided to give the mount to Eddie Arcaro, set out at Churchill Downs yesterday to make somebody sorry. He was aboard the winning horses in the first three races.

Some interesting facts concerning the Jamaica meeting are revealed by Al Buren, clerk of scales. His figures show that 26 horses breaking from the No. 1 position have flicked, while only nine have come through from the extreme outside position. There have been 39 blinker changes, 31 on and eight off and of these, four with blinkers on and two with them off have registered.

At Narragansett Park yesterday, the Glen Riddle Farms' War Relic, which led most of the way, the feature race, bolted at the 15th pole and struck the inner rail. Jockey Tommy Luther was unseated but escaped injury.

Rupert Donoso, the Chilean booter, who was the first rider suspended at Jamaica this season, will be restored to good standing tomorrow when his 10-day ban expires.

Equipet, owned by Breckenridge Long, Washington sportsman, was sent to New York from Pimlico yesterday to fulfill her engagement in the Demoiselle stakes at Jamaica Saturday.

Rides and Riders: Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons has engaged Johnny Gilbert to ride one of the horses he will saddle in the Pimlico Prekness. Porter Robbins will ride Bold Irishman and Gilbert likely will be up on King Cole. . . . Chippy Sea. . . Eddie Arcaro, who'll be aboard Whirlaway in the Derby, has been signed to ride the Coldstream Stable's unbeaten two-year-old Albartross in the forthcoming Youthful stakes at Jamaica. . . . Jimmy Stuebel will handle Arnold Hamper's Roman Flag in the $5000 added Jamaica Handicap in the absence of Carroll Bierman who will be riding the King Ranch's Dispose in the Derby.

WINNING HIS OWN GAME—Bucky Walters, ace Cincinnati pitcher, stopped Brooklyn's winning streak at nine games when he held the Dodgers to seven hits and helped to win his own game, 2 to 1, in the 11th. Walters is shown here reaching second on his double in the 11th. Coscarart covers the sack for the Dodgers. Joost's single sent Bucky home with the winning run, and then Walters struck out the pinch hitters Pete Reiser and Babe Phelps with the bases loaded in the last half of the 11th.

Oarsmen Wait Gun

Oarsmen of seven colleges and universities today were engaged in final workouts for two regattas on Charles river tomorrow afternoon.

A reorganized crew of Massachusetts Institute of Technology hoped for victory in the Compton Cup races against Harvard, Cornell and Princeton.

Last Monday in the annual Rowe Cup regatta the Crimson defeated Technology and Boston University. Dartmouth was favored over Boston University and American International College in the other water competition. All are comparative newcomers to the sport. Dartmouth, however, is believed to have the strongest crew.

A special feature of the second program is a plan to make known the official winner after development of a photo-finish picture. Suffolk County Sheriff Fred Sullivan, a former Harvard University coxswain, is referee.

Whirlaway First Named For Derby

Porter's Cap, Our Boots and Whirlaway. There's plenty of speed in the field and that should suit the favorites."

Sixth in the box was the "prayer for mud" colt Swain, purchased last winter by Cleveland Putnam, San Francisco fruit man, from William duPont, Jr., of Delaware.

Valdina Paul, rank outsider from Emerson F. Woodward's Texas-owned Valdina Farm, was the seventh name to be dropped into the box, and was followed by Staretor, lightly regarded California hope, owned by Hugh S. Nesbitt.

A few minutes later Rocky Palladino of Boston, trainer of Little Beans, raised the total to nine Palladino was the first to show up with the cash, laying five crisp $100 bills on the counter.

NO WORD ON MOORE

There was a hitch over Little Beans when Churchill Downs officials advised Palladino they had received no word yet from Narragansett Park concerning the lifting of Jockey Gus (Gee-Gee) Moore's suspension.

Palladino listed Moore as his rider to replace Don Meade, who was forced to remain in New York to fulfill a stake engagement for his employer, George Odum.

Palladino immediately wired Narragansett stewards, asking them to inform the Downs Moore is eligible.

Agent Ernie Kothe meantime entered Porter's Cap.

While everyone waited for Our Boots' entry, which figured to complete the field, Trainer Steve Judge leisurely picked his mail out of the mail box and read through it before going into the secretary's office.

Moore for Derby

NARRAGANSETT PARK, Pawtucket, R. I., May 2—When informed that Churchill I was not received notice of the lifting of the suspension on Jockey George Moore, scheduled to replace Don Meade on Little Beans in the Derby, Steward Tom Thorp declared that he had sent a wire to the stewards at Churchill Downs giving the okay on Moore. This means Rocky Palladino will have one less headache in connection with his Derby venture.

BOBBY'S BOY UNIMPRESSIVE IN SCHOOLBOY TOURNAMENT

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 2 (AP)—Fourteen-year-old Bobby Jones, 3rd., son of the one-time king of the golf world, was far out of the running today in the annual Southern prep and high school golf tournament.

The youngster, making his competitive debut, posted yesterday a round total of 95-96-193, which was 53 shots over par.

"I got every penalty on the whole course," Bobby explained. "I went out of bounds, I hit opponents' balls and did everything else."

His father, here for the opening rounds of the 54-hole Medal Play event, had predicted his son would have "97's or 105's" on each eighteen.

Baseball Stars

Charlie Keller, Yankees — Hit homer and triple and batted in seven runs against Browns.

Frank Pytlak and Don DiMaggio, Red Sox — Each made four hits in assault on Tigers.

Dutch Leonard and Cecil Travis, Senators — Former pitched eight-hit shutout ball and latter collected home run and two doubles.

Russ Bauers, Pirates — Fetched five-hitter against Phillies.

Bucky Walters, Reds — Stopped Dodger streak with seven-hit pitching over 12 innings and hit double to set up winning run.

Lon Warneke, Cardinals — Kept nine hits scattered to shut out Giants.

Park League Opens May 12

All the opening day ceremonies of the major league clubs will be reproduced on a minor scale—in the past years—when the Boston Park League swings into its twilight schedule a week from Monday night, May 12, at the Dorchester Town Field.

The after-dinner entertainment will pit the defending champion Casey Club of Dorchester against the Artesian Club of Brighton in the feature game of the opening night's schedule.

As in the majors, there will be a parade, a flag raising and a goodly crowd on hand to send the teams into action. The mayor, Maurice J. Tobin, president of the league, will throw out the first ball which will get the championship play underway.

But the Casys and Artesians will not be alone in starting the battle for the pennant. On three other diamonds, the clubs will get their seasons underway, with the Hellens of Allston meeting St. Catherine's at Barry playground in Charlestown; the Crosby Club of Roxbury traveling to meet the Rosindale A. A. and the Hurley Club of Roxbury clashing with Carter's Clothes in South Boston.

Returns

After a fast but thorough-going study of the aerial war over Britain, Maj.-Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Corps, returns to New York via Clipper. Today he was in Washington to place his conclusions before the Army high command.

Day Starts

Off for their day's work go Manchester's postmen and women... starting on their routes wearing gas masks. They're required to wear the masks 10 minutes each day.

Nazis in Africa—Off duty at the moment, two members of the Nazi African corps chat with the native boy who cares for the camels in the background. Today, Axis troops were reported to have penetrated the outer defenses of British-held Tobruk, where fighting is continuing.
